Hearnes to Offer Record State Budget

Cable TV Plea Refused

Weber Gilmore, an attorney, was denied a merchant's license last night at the February city council meeting for lease of Southwestern Bell Telephone wires for cable television.

Gilmore told the council that "all I'm asking for is a merchant's license, I don't want a franchise."

Mayor Kendall Sikes told him that the council needed to talk with City Attorney Manuel Drumm who was absent, before any action was taken.

"Then if he finds nothing legally wrong it means that I will be issued a merchant's license," Gilmore asked.

Gilmore said that the company supplying the television service would be a corporation owned by Sikeston people.

He said that 12 channels would be available to viewers. One channel, according to Gilmore, would be a 24-hour weather service. The cost would be $5.95 per month to users.

"One of these days you fellows are going to have to move on this subject," Gilmore said.

City Manager W. Raymont Miller said he thought the plan had merit and that he wanted it to be advantageous to the people.

"You could sell the people in Sikeston a load of goats as far as that goes," Mayor Sikes commented.

The council followed the recommendation of the zoning commission to not permit a change in the zoning of Lot 15, Block 16, Chamber of Commerce addition, from residential to commercial.

The council resolved to have a public hearing at the next city council meeting to change lots 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, and lots 9, 10, 11 and 12 on block one of the E. C. Matthews addition from single family residential to multiple family.

The council adopted a resolution to pave Indiana street from Broadway to Ralph street. Councilman Harry Dudley was absent.

LBJ Cancels Meeting

HONOLULU AP -- President Johnson scheduled -- then canceled -- an extra meeting today with top leaders of South Vietnam after reviewing with them military aspects of the war -- a war they want intensified.

Press secretary Bill D. Moyers first announced Johnson was adding an afternoon meeting with the Vietnamese to his schedule. Then Moyers disclosed a change of signals and said Johnson would leave at 1 p.m.

The latest announcement did not specify Johnson's destination but it was understood he might make a brief stop en route to Washington.

There was no explanation for the change in plans.

Charged with Mail Theft in New Madrid

MEMPHIS, Tenn. AP -- Ralph Miller, 28, of Olive Branch, Miss., is free on $1,000 bond pending a hearing Friday before U. S. Commissioner John C. Moore.

Miller was arrested at Cape Girardeau, Mo., and charged with stealing four packages of quarters valued at $200 each. Postal Inspector George D. Holman Jr. said the alleged theft occurred during a mail delivery from a Memphis bank to a bank in New Madrid, Mo.

Holman said Miller was driving the mail truck from which the money was taken.

Miller escaped from postal inspectors at Cape Girardeau when he was picked up at a rooming house. He returned to Memphis and called postal authorities. He was then arrested by Memphis police.

Filibuster Continues

WASHINGTON AP -- The Senate refused today to shut off the filibuster against the bill to end the right of states to outlaw the union shop.

Then it headed for a new test Thursday on the same point, but another failure then appeared certain.

Even the bill's strongest backers did not expect to improve their showing appreciably on the second test.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic leader who has been trying unsuccessfully even to get the Senate to agree to take up the bill formally, said it is dead for the session if he loses again.

The result today was 51 votes for Mansfield's cloture motion and 48 against, or 15 votes short of the two-thirds-66 votes -- required to cut off debate.

Fulbright Quotes LBJ

WASHINGTON AP -- Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., quoted President Johnson today in support of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's public inquiry into U.S. Asian policy.

As retired Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin began testifying at the committee's televised hearings, Fulbright, the committee chairman, said the nation is confronted by "some momentous decisions in the near future" as to where escalation of the war in Viet Nam might lead.

New York May Get Lottery

Following Assembly action, the plan will be ticketed for the election ballot. It will appear as a proposed amendment to the state constitution.

Exactly what form the lottery would take will be left to the 1967 legislature to decide, assuming the voters endorse the principle. Sponsors of the lottery bill have talked of sweepstakes, similar to the New Hampshire plan, which is based on horse races.

All proceeds would have to be consigned to state aid for education. The lottery revenue has been estimated as high as $400 million a year.

The Senate's Republican Majority Leader, Earl W. Brydges, arrayed himself against passage of the lottery measure. He called the plan "immoral" and "demeaning to our great state."

By Brydges said Republican senators were not committed to vote against it as a party issue. His plea was strictly a personal one.

NEW AND old council members after a special Boy Scout election last night. Seated, Jasper Grant, Jim Christy, Dick Smith, Charles Harrington, Joe Schlosser, and Billy Walls. Standing are Dr. William Critchlow, Arthur Ziegenhorn, Taylor Noles, Mayor Kendall Sikes and city manager Raymont Miller.

They were transported to the county jail at Benton.

They were arrested over the weekend and charged with 10 breaks and the theft of two trucks.

Preliminary hearings for each were set for next Tuesday. Clifford Ray Filipo, 314 Kendall, was sentenced to 30 days in county jail for speeding 90 miles per hour in a 60-mile per hour speed zone.

He was fined $16 for having his vehicle improperly registered.

Under a law enacted by Congress last year, nearly 100 minimum security prisoners have left confinement for death, visits, funerals and pre-release job interviews.

"These men can now leave prison unescorted to visit the dying," Alexander said in an interview in which he disclosed the extension of the furlough plan. "But how much more important it is to strengthen their ties with the living."

He sees the furlough plan as a "valuable treatment device that can make a major contribution to a man's preparation for the outside world."

Under the new regulations, he said, prisoners will be given 48-hour passes to visit their wives, children, parents "or other responsible members of the immediate family."

If the hometown is too far away to make such visits practical, the prisoners will be allowed to meet relatives in a nearby community.

Except for staying within the limits of the area agreed on in advance -- and, of course, staying out of trouble -- there will be no restrictions on their activities with their families.

Nearly $637 million has been spent in Mexico on irrigation projects the last six years.

While the campaign was waged only mildly and produced no burning issues, many political observers view the outcome as a possible indication of how the parties may fare nationally in this fall's congressional elections. Some feel it may be a test of President Johnson's policies.

Between 65,000 and 95,000 voters of Manhattan's wealthy "silk stocking" 17th Congressional District are expected to cast ballots. The district, which embraces the East Side and part of Greenwich Village, is 3-2 Democratic but has not elected a Democratic representative since 1937. It has 215,000 registered voters, many of them independents.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Next week will be a critical one for Missouri political leaders who will select the nominees from which Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will choose the members of his House Reapportionment Committee.

The 10 U. S. Congressional district committees of both parties will each select two nominees and from this list Governor Hearnes will select 10 Democrats and 10 Republicans for the Commission.

The body named by the Governor will tackle a tough job, that of cutting the state into 163 districts as nearly equal in population as possible.

The governor is expected to name the Commission by Feb. 23 and then the body will have 30 days in which to file a plan with the Secretary of State.

Governor Hearnes said the nominees should have a knowledge of government, proven leadership capabilities, without factional alignments and with "no axes to grind."

The dates for the district committee meetings include: Democrat Feb. 18-19th at Poplar Bluff. Republican Feb. 15-16th at Cape Girardeau.

Jefferson City (AP) -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today recommended in his budget a total of $25,604,255 for capital improvements at state institutions, including the somewhat weather-beaten capitol.

This was a marked reduction for institutional and agency requests of $116,720,403. It perhaps reflected the recent public statements of the governor that he is considering the need for a bond issue to meet the state's constantly increasing building needs.

Institutions of higher learning would be the greatest beneficiaries of the capital improvement program but even their requests were slashed substantially.

The University of Missouri at Columbia asked for $12,925,000 and the governor recommended $2,125,000.

Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau asked $6,563,493 and Hearnes recommended $344,275.

No recommendation was made for nine clinics for mentally retarded children. Construction costs were provided last year.

Succeeding him will be Jack Sprague, who has been with the Mullen Container division of the company in Chicago.

Sprague will arrive this week, and his wife, two daughters and a son, ages 10, 13 and 15, will arrive in Sikeston as soon as a home is found.

Paftsch has been with the Sikeston division of the Potlatch company since 1963.

No New Taxes for $1 Billion Outlay

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes is going to hold the line on new taxes, despite its size it is another "hold the line" type of budget, well within the state's expected revenues and calling for no new taxes.

"Once again," the governor said in his message, "the budget is predicated on a belief the aims presented can be accomplished without increases in taxes."

Releasing the figures today, Hearnes established another precedent. He sent copies to members of the House and Senate Appropriations committees who will open hearings next Monday, two weeks before the legislative opening.

There was no hint whether governor might include other recommendations in his call for the special session.

The governor recommended a total expenditure of $998,766,242 for the fiscal year starting July 1, compared with $937,085,952 for this year.

This includes $962,099,613 for operating state agencies, compared with $890 million this year. It also calls for $25,604,255 in capital improvements.

The rest -- more than $11 million -- includes: (1) Increase in state aid under the School Foundation -- $9,961,374.

(2) Development of a statewide comprehensive plan to qualify for various federal programs -- $80,000 to the Division of Commerce and Industrial Development and $20,000 to the State Inter-Agency Council for Outdoor Recreation.

(3) -- $215,000 to the Office of Economic Opportunity to match $86,000 in federal funds.

These were the only new programs recommended by the governor.

For other agencies, he recommended only normal "growth" increases. Overall, the budget called for salary increases of one to four per cent, averaging out at about three per cent.

The budget was based on the expectation of a general revenue balance of about $31 million at the end of the fiscal year. That does not take into account another $20 million regarded as a safe day-to-day operating balance.

Hearnes said the revenue outlook is encouraging.

He cited an encouraging economy with direct reference to increased federal spending in Missouri -- over $22 million will be spent by public schools this year from federal funds received under the 1965 elementary and secondary school act.

"Further, a very favorable business climate in Missouri has caused rapid growth of our two chief sources of revenue, sales tax and income tax."

He said the budget was based on seven points: "First, maintain 1965-66 level of state services."

"Second, provide increases to meet proven cost rises."

"Third, provide increases to meet measurable growth in workloads and existing statutory obligations."

"Fourth, limited expansion of existing programs."

"Fifth, addition of new programs justified only through extensive study."

"Sixth, a capital outlay budget limited to essential repairs and replacement; to emergency housing needs for existing workloads and needs so urgent their satisfaction cannot longer be delayed or denied."

"Seventh, salary increases for all state personnel where not controlled by statute -- with increases ranging between one and four per cent, and lower paid personnel scheduled to receive the highest raises as a step toward solving the serious problem of inadequate salaries in state government."

The budget is predicated on estimates that general revenue next year will amount to $403,940,000, compared with an estimated $386,410,000 this year.

Other state sources are expected to produce $232,600,000, against $211,825,000 this year. Federal grants are expected to be over $304 million, compared with $255 million, but budget officials concede "open end" federal appropriations make this difficult thing to estimate.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. AP -- Ralph Miller, 28, of Olive Branch, Miss., is free on $1,000 bond pending a hearing Friday before U. S. Commissioner John C. Moore.

Holman said Miller was driving the mail truck from which the money was taken.

Miller escaped from postal inspectors at Cape Girardeau when he was picked up at a rooming house. He returned to Memphis and called postal authorities. He was then arrested by Memphis police.

Spec/5 Carl Mays

Paratrooper Dies in Mishap While Fishing

BERTRAND -- Spec 5, Carl Mays, 32, lost his life in an accident near Nha Trang in Viet Nam, while fishing in a Viet Nam nationalist soldier Monday.

The two were fishing and used hand grenades in killing large fish.

One of the grenades fell in a boat and exploded killing the two.

Mays was a career soldier. He had been in the armed services almost 14 years. He first enlisted in the navy for four years. He then transferred to the paratroopers where he served for the past nine years.

Notification of the fatality was received by relatives last night from an army official in Cape Girardeau.

Mays had received a letter of congratulations from Sen. Stuart Symington a few days ago for bravery in action since arriving in Viet Nam in August.

The body will be returned to the United States for burial. He was born in Dorena, March 3, 1933, son of the late William and Willie C. Mays. He graduated from Diehlstadt high school in 1951.

Surviving is his mother, who lives near Bertrand; two daughters, Carla, 4, and Krista, 2; four brothers, Wesley Mays, Bertrand route, Otha Mays, Immalalee, Fla., Terry Mays and Allen Mays, both of Sikeston; five sisters, Mrs. Bessie Terry, Hickman, Ky., Mrs. Verna Walker, Mayfield, Ky., Mrs. Rachael Hulsey, Tulsa, Okla., Mrs. Mozella Hager, Immalalee, Fla., and Mrs. Linnie Adair, Chicago.

As retired Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin began testifying at the committee's televised hearings, Fulbright, the committee chairman, said the nation is confronted by "some momentous decisions in the near future" as to where escalation of the war in Viet Nam might lead.

Preliminary hearings for each were set for next Tuesday. Clifford Ray Filippo, 314 Kendall, was sentenced to 30 days in county jail for speeding 90 miles per hour in a 60-mile per hour speed zone.

He was fined $16 for having his vehicle improperly registered.

Next week will be a critical one for Missouri political leaders who will select the nominees from which Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will choose the members of his House Reapportionment Committee.

The 10 U. S. Congressional district committees of both parties will each select two nominees and from this list Governor Hearnes will select 10 Democrats and 10 Republicans for the Commission.

The body named by the Governor will tackle a tough job, that of cutting the state into 163 districts as nearly equal in population as possible.

The governor is expected to name the Commission by Feb. 23 and then the body will have 30 days in which to file a plan with the Secretary of State.

Governor Hearnes said the nominees should have a knowledge of government, proven leadership capabilities, without factional alignments and with "no axes to grind."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Tuesday, February 8, 1477, Gol Dang, China: First abacus installed in office, puts eight bookkeepers out of work.

President Lyndon B. Johnson's decision to resume bombing of North Viet Nam was handled with dignity, courage and restraint.

He accompanied the announcement with an explanation that he was taking the initiative for new peace moves and promised that efforts to win the war would continue.

To have continued the lull would have given the Viet Cong the opportunity to rebuild and to mass its forces. It would have been against the welfare and safety of the Vietnamese, United States and allied forces in the Southeast Asia country.

The cessation served a useful purpose. It showed that this country has a heart and that it is willing to proceed in good faith in achieving peace.

The Hanoi government's hand was exposed. It does not want peace but desires the war to continue unless the Vietnamese surrender and turn their country over to the Communists.

Politically the lull also lifted a lot of Johnson critics from his back.

The critics can no longer argue that he has pursued a policy of aggression in Viet Nam and has made no peaceful overtures.

The marching in the streets has stopped. The conflict in Viet Nam is not a popular war in the United States.

The American people should rally now solidly to the support of the President in his efforts to bring the war to the speediest possible successful conclusion.

Appetement is not the route to take. A majority of Americans know this and fully support the President in his difficult decisions in the conduct of this war in a faraway land that is resisting the spread of Communism in one part of the world.

"One for the road," the hostess said. And he, like a pup, was easily led. "Car hit a tree" the papers read. They picked him up--but he was dead.

GUARDING YOUR CHILD'S HEART

The heart you save may be the heart of a child, perhaps not yet born, says the Missouri Heart Association.

Or maybe it's a "blue baby," half a continent away, who will soon be given the gift of a full life by a miraculously complex and delicate open-heart operation.

Or it could be your own healthy youngster, who will be protected from the dreaded rheumatic fever aftermath of a "strep" infection by prompt treatment with penicillin.

All these young hearts and thousands more are the direct and dramatic beneficiaries of a mere two decades of medical progress. Twenty years ago, the outlook for a blue baby -- a baby born with certain defects of the heart and blood vessels -- was poor. Open-heart surgery was still in the realm of science fiction, and heart-lung machines were only projects on an investigator's drawing board.

Before medicine had a sure-fire weapon -- penicillin -- to knock out streptococcal infections, "strep" throats cast a sinister shadow of rheumatic fever wherever they struck. And because there was no defense, they might strike again and again, each time carrying the threat of more damage to the victim's heart.

Even the statistics are dramatic. The death rate for rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease among children and young adults 5-24 years of age has declined 83 per cent over the past 20 years. As many as 100,000 Americans probably owe their lives to heart surgery. And for the thousands of youngsters with a history of rheumatic fever, protection is available against repeat attacks, while the menace of initial onset has been lifted for untold thousands now growing to adulthood.

And then there are the babies who could never have been born before the era of open-heart surgery. Surgical repair of a number of inborn or acquired heart defects has enabled many women to conceive and bear children. Necessary corrective surgery has even been carried out during pregnancy, with survival of both mother and baby.

Each year we gain new knowledge and new weapons, giving more and more children a chance to live and grow normally. As scientists learn more about the manner in which heart defects arise in the developing embryo, even the frontier of life before birth will be breached.

Medical research will one day find the answer to the big rheumatic fever question: how do streptococcal infections trigger an attack of rheumatic fever, why are only a small percentage susceptible, and what causes the heart damage rheumatic fever may leave in its wake? This knowledge can help us to consign rheumatic fever to medical limbo, along with such former scourges as smallpox and polio.

The American Heart Association has been an important motive power propelling heart disease research in this country since the first Heart Fund campaign in 1949. The money given by Americans, year after year, has been the sustaining power, making medical progress possible, and also making it possible for the Heart Association to translate this progress into life-saving educational and community service programs.

of talking to each other.

That old war is the one about whether men or women drivers are better. Now, some new statistical information shows that women drivers, particularly those under 25 years old, are involved in an increasing number of accidents. These statistics are based not on how many men or women drive, but on the number of accidents per miles driven. Since 1958, according to the National Safety Council, male accident rates have been decreasing while those of women have been increasing.

Traffic authorities don't know the reason for this, for sure, but the general belief is that at least part of the increase has come from suburban housewives, who are the family "chauffeurs" and are doing more and more driving each year.

As one result of the increase, insurance rates possibly will go up for the younger women drivers.

We'll be impartial in the impending arguments by supplying ammunition to both sides. Women can note that, despite the increasing rates, the fatality rate for women is 34 deaths per million miles driven, while that for men is more than twice as high, at 77, according to the latest statistics available.

Men can note and quote the Safety Council's remark that men have higher rates, in part, because they do most of the night driving and rural road driving, with these two categories by far the most hazardous of all driving.

No matter who wins any of the family arguments who's best or safest, women are going to be greatly outnumbered for years to come. Of the estimated 91 million drivers in this country, 57 million are men and 34 million are women.

The Colonel said: "If you can't keep up with a conversation, keep out of it."

BATTLE OF THE HOT LUNCH

ALMOST ON A PAR with Mother, Apple Pie and Old Glory as sacred American symbols is the National School Lunch Program, now in its 20th year of operation. Some 18 million children in 71,000 public and non-profit private schools will be served federally subsidized hot lunches under this program in the current school year.

Now comes President Johnson with this disturbing word: Because of the high costs of war in Viet Nam, the federal contribution of cash and surplus food to the lunch program will have to be cut back in fiscal 1967, except in poverty areas. Before the battle of the hot lunch is settled, however, the President may wish he had chosen to save money elsewhere in his budget.

THE LUNCH PROGRAM enables children to enjoy a complete lunch for an average payment of 27¢. This lunch actually costs about 50¢. But the Agriculture Department donates about 8¢ worth of food from surplus stocks and supplemental purchases, and 4 1/2¢ is provided in the form of a cash reimbursement. Another 11¢ of the lunch cost is picked up from state and local sources.

President Johnson proposes chopping $70 million off the federal school milk and school lunch programs in the fiscal year beginning next July 1. Both federal cash contributions and the support for supplemental food purchases would be slashed. Moreover, the Agriculture Department is working on a new formula under which so-called "well-to-do schools" would have to buy virtually all the food without government financial help. This would help to pay for new poverty-oriented school meal programs, such as giving school breakfasts to needy children in slum areas.

Even before the budget-cutting step was announced, the school lunch program was in trouble. Many school systems were reporting a sizeable reduction in the amount of basic commodities, meat and cheese, they were receiving from Uncle Sam. With surplus food stocks dwindling, the local systems had no choice but to purchase more of these items on the local market at going prices.

Thus the price charged for the plate lunches has been rising. A charge of 35¢ per lunch--$1.75 a week--is now common. For parents with three or more children in school the answer frequently is to start packing lunches at home. A vicious spiral ensues as the number of children buying lunches falls and unit costs rise.

AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT officials concede that the price of school lunches in many cities has gone as high as it can go without driving kids out of the cafeteria line. The alternative seems to be for local school boards to start providing greater financial support for the program. Not all systems now include in the school budget the administrative expenses required of the school lunch program--a central staff, equipment, warehousing and delivery system.

Some observers still expect Congress to come to the rescue. It enacted the National School Lunch Act in 1946 "to safeguard the health and well-being of the nation's children and to encourage the domestic consumption of nutritious agricultural commodities and other foods." The higher price of a school meal ticket is one issue that touches millions of homes in the country. In an election year, few members of Congress wish to tangle with the mothers' lobby.

When a neighbor calls for a Heart Sunday contribution, remember that Heart and blood vessel disease is your number one health enemy, causing about 54% of all deaths.

NEW YORK (AP) -- Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Motorcycling is enjoying a boom today among grownups as well as the leather jacket crowd. Some 700,000 Americans own motor bikes. But motor cycling is still a dangerous sport. The death rate is 13 per year for each 10,000 cycles, compared to six deaths for each 10,000 motor cars.

--sit-ins, freedom marches, demonstrations, beat poetry and the like -- and not that there won't be more of it in the future.

But it was in 1965 that discontent with the way things are in this country and the world, heretofore rumbling distant like underground streams, suddenly burst into the open and spilled into a number of channels.

The urge to protest, to change, to correct, to tear down and build up anew has infected people of all ages. If it isn't concerned with civil rights, then it's the Viet Nam war. If it isn't that, then it's academic freedom.

Usually it is all of these, plus a general attack on society's conventions and beliefs to boot, and some of the same people are swimming in all of the currents at once.

We became aware in 1965, for instance, that rock'n'roll had evolved into "folk-rock," with message lyrics bawling the sickness and futility of the modern world and prophesying the doom that waits it.

Study groups calling themselves "free universities" sprang up to challenge the allegedly stultifying environments and curricula of our traditional schools. Subjects ranged from Communist China today to drugs as a means of personality enhancement to forging a new sexual morality.

A new school of theologians shocked the lay public by proclaiming that "God is dead" and called for reassessment of man's spiritual condition and needs in the 20th century.

Some of this revolt against custom and the status quo is silly and self-indicting, like ragged beards and dirty clothes. Some of it may even be dangerous, like pep pills and hallucinatory drugs. But a lot of it is healthy and could work profound changes in life. The trouble is that few of us activists and onlookers alike

Not Litterbugs Britain is taking out after the folks who head for the great outdoors on weekend outings, scattering litter as they go. Every pretty weekend sees public beauty spots turned into "paper-littered shambles" that leave beaches dangerous with broken glass and tins, says the London Observer. Crops are trampled, flowers are uprooted and fences are broken down.

Nature lovers are up in arms about it all. They want more punitive action taken to preserve nature's beauty. The British Naturalist Association is calling for the use of "offensive weapons" to keep out the weekend fun-lovers. Presumably, The Observer says, this means using air guns to pepper 'em with.

One would think the British have the idea that Americans don't do all of these things. We do have roadside picnic areas, national parks, camps, and the public is asked not to mess'em up. ##### INFLATION AND GOVERNMENT CONTROL

Price control by government edict is deeply repugnant to the great majority of Americans, and so far in our history has been tolerated only in wartime, and very grudgingly then. Nationalization of major industries, a vital element in the program of international socialism, is overwhelmingly rejected by the people as a legitimate activity of government.

Yet there is a real danger that both price control and nationalization will come in the back door while the front door remains firmly barred against them. This danger results from our continuing monetary inflation.

Inflation may increase in the supply of money by government action. As more money goes into circulation, the value of the dollar decreases. In a free market, this is soon reflected in rising prices and wages.

But government, through a massive propaganda effort, has now convinced many people that inflation, and rising prices and wages, are one and the same thing. This means that if prices and wages can be held down, government can claim it has stopped inflation. It is a perfect example of treating the symptoms instead of the disease.

If by a combination of pressures government can hold down prices for goods produced by major industries, rising costs resulting from inflation will soon eliminate their profits. In order to keep producing, such industries would have to turn to government for subsidies. Government subsidization soon becomes nationalization in everything but name.

Inflation is both a hidden tax and a device which can readily be used for a vast extension of government control. It has destroyed the economy of many nations. H.L.H.

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Little more than a year ago, Chairman William Fulbright, D-Ark., hailed Gen. Julius Klein before the Senate Foreign Relations committee and cross-examined him about his activities as a $150,000-a-year West German agent.

The unhappy Klein confessed that he prepared speeches for congressmen, planted stories in newspapers, and otherwise promoted West Germany. There is nothing illegal about this. However, the public is entitled to know when the speeches of a representative or senator are written by a foreign agent. That is why Congress passed the Foreign Agents Registration act. This makes a foreign agent an important public figure, despite opinions recently rendered by local D. C. courts.

Gen. Klein, however, insisted to Sen. Fulbright that he was not paid by the government but by a private group.

"It is a group," he said, "that you find in every city that people get together, whether the members are bankers or chaplains or doctors, of all business life."

Fulbright, peering professor-like through glasses half way down his nose, asked whether the group was "under the control of the Bonn government."

"This is not correct, Mr. Chairman," said Klein.

"It is not?" asked Fulbright in a tone of mild surprise. "No," repeated Klein under oath. "On the contrary. This is not correct."

Klein was more candid, however, in his confessions to another committee member. In preparing secret "briefing memos" for Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., Klein acknowledged that his client was indeed under the West German government's control.

Dodd did not turn this startling information over the committee, however, so it could bring perjury charges against Klein. He used the secret memos instead for guidance in approaching German leaders last year at Klein's behest. GOVERNMENT SUPPORTED The senator tried to convince them that the Foreign Relations committee's criticism of Klein had been misunderstood and that they shouldn't cancel Klein's contract.

Klein furnished Dodd with a list of people to see in Germany, plus a background memo on each one.

In the memo on Dr. Gerhard Hempel, Klein informed the senator:

"Dr. Hempel is the former Lord Mayor of Wiemar and the secretary general of the Society for the Promotion of German-American cooperation, whose public relations interest I represent in the United States."

"The Society is supported, naturally, through the influence of the German Chancellery and whether they continue to use me depends on the good will in the Chancellery in Bonn."

In another memo on West Germany's Secretary of State Karl Carstens, Klein wrote: "Carstens was the man who gave support to the German group -- The Society to Promote German-American cooperation, Wiesbaden -- that engaged me to handle political public relations. He is the KEY to this problem as without the support from his office the Wiesbaden group could not function."

"For your information, Carstens' office subsidized or contributed heavily to the Wiesbaden group which engaged me at the recommendation of Chancellor Adenauer originally."

ALL THE WAY WITH JK The background memo on Dr. Heinrich Von Brentano, the former Foreign Minister, identified him as one of Klein's most staunch supporters.

"I visited him two weeks ago," wrote Klein, "and he will go all the way. He is the best friend and supporter I have -- 100 per cent for me."

In the Nazi regime. Wrote Klein: "Mr. Abs is a leading German banker and a member of the Board of Directors of many of my commercial clients. The brunt of the attacks against me began when I started to fight for Abs."

He referred to a report in this column on February 23, 1958, that West German industrialists had hired "a prominent Illinois Republican, Gen. Julius Klein, to work with Hitler's former financier, Hermann Abs, in order to tap the United States treasury for the return of German property."

"POOR" BANKER ABS What this column reported regarding banker Abs was that he had paid Gen. Klein $40,000 plus expenses to lobby for the return of German property and that, though Klein claimed Abs was a poor victim of Hitler, "The fact is that Abs was one of the top bankers under Hitler, a director of I. G. Farben, a director of the Deutsche bank; and Sen. Smathers of Florida has put in the congressional record proof that Abs was a member of the German bankers who participated in wresting away Jewish-owned property under Hitler."

This column also reported: "A confidential cable sent to Washington by U. S. Political Adviser Robert Murphy in 1948 reported: 'Abs controlled hand-in-glove during the Third Reich with leading political personalities of the government, industry and (Nazi) party circles.'"

"He became prominent in 1937 as Chief of the Foreign Department of the Deutsche bank and was in many circles considered to be the most brilliant and energetic of the Deutsche bank's board of directors. Subject took important role in imperialistic expansion of Deutsche bank following Nazi political and military absorption."

Such was one of the West German clients who paid the former commander of the Jewish War Veterans to write speeches for a United States Senator and propagandize various congressmen.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Tuesday, February 8, 1477, Gol Dang, China: First abacus installed in office, puts eight bookkeepers out of work.

President Lyndon B. Johnson's decision to resume bombing of North Viet Nam was handled with dignity, courage and restraint.

He accompanied the announcement with an explanation that he was taking the initiative for new peace moves and promised that efforts to win the war would continue.

To have continued the lull would have given the Viet Cong the opportunity to rebuild and to mass its forces. It would have been against the welfare and safety of the Vietnamese, United States and allied forces in the Southeast Asia country.

The cessation served a useful purpose. It showed that this country has a heart and that it is willing to proceed in good faith in achieving peace.

The Hanoi government's hand was exposed. It does not want peace but desires the war to continue unless the Vietnamese surrender and turn their country over to the Communists.

Politically the lull also lifted a lot of Johnson critics from his back.

The critics can no longer argue that he has pursued a policy of aggression in Viet Nam and has made no peaceful overtures.

The marching in the streets has stopped. The conflict in Viet Nam is not a popular war in the United States.

The American people should rally now solidly to the support of the President in his efforts to bring the war to the speediest possible successful conclusion.

Appeasement is not the route to take.

A majority of Americans know this and fully support the President in his difficult decisions in the conduct of this war in a faraway land that is resisting the spread of Communism in one part of the world.

"One for the road," the hostess said. And he, like a pup, was easily led. "Car hit a tree" the papers read. They picked him up--but he was dead.

GUARDING YOUR CHILD'S HEART

The heart you save may be the heart of a child, perhaps not yet born, says the Missouri Heart Association.

Or maybe it's a "blue baby," half a continent away, who will soon be given the gift of a full life by a miraculously complex and delicate open-heart operation.

Or it could be your own healthy youngster, who will be protected from the dreaded rheumatic fever aftermath of a "strep" infection by prompt treatment with penicillin.

All these young hearts and thousands more are the direct and dramatic beneficiaries of a mere two decades of medical progress. Twenty years ago, the outlook for a blue baby -- a baby born with certain defects of the heart and blood vessels -- was poor. Open-heart surgery was still in the realm of science fiction, and heart-lung machines were only projects on an investigator's drawing board.

Before medicine had a sure-fire weapon -- penicillin -- to knock out streptococcal infections, "strep" throats cast a sinister shadow of rheumatic fever wherever they struck. And because there was no defense, they might strike again and again, each time carrying the threat of more damage to the victim's heart.

Even the statistics are dramatic. The death rate for rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease among children and young adults 5-24 years of age has declined 83 per cent over the past 20 years. As many as 100,000 Americans probably owe their lives to heart surgery. And for the thousands of youngsters with a history of rheumatic fever, protection is available against repeat attacks, while the menace of initial onset has been lifted for untold thousands now growing to adulthood.

And then there are the babies who could never have been born before the era of open-heart surgery. Surgical repair of a number of inborn or acquired heart defects has enabled many women to conceive and bear children. Necessary corrective surgery has even been carried out during pregnancy, with survival of both mother and baby.

Each year we gain new knowledge and new weapons, giving more and more children a chance to live and grow normally. As scientists learn more about the manner in which heart defects arise in the developing embryo, even the frontier of life before birth will be breached.

Medical research will one day find the answer to the big rheumatic fever question: how do streptococcal infections trigger an attack of rheumatic fever, why are only a small percentage susceptible, and what causes the heart damage rheumatic fever may leave in its wake? This knowledge can help us to consign rheumatic fever to medical limbo, along with such former scourges as smallpox and polio.

The American Heart Association has been an important motive power propelling heart disease research in this country since the first Heart Fund campaign in 1949. The money given by Americans, year after year, has been the sustaining power, making medical progress possible, and also making it possible for the Heart Association to translate this progress into life-saving educational and community service programs.

That old war is the one about whether men or women drivers are better. Now, some new statistical information shows that women drivers, particularly those under 25 years old, are involved in an increasing number of accidents. These statistics are based not on how many men or women drive, but on the number of accidents per miles driven. Since 1958, according to the National Safety Council, male accident rates have been decreasing while those of women have been increasing.

Traffic authorities don't know the reason for this, for sure, but the general belief is that at least part of the increase has come from suburban housewives, who are the family "chauffeurs" and are doing more and more driving each year.

As one result of the increase, insurance rates possibly will go up for the younger women drivers.

We'll be impartial in the impending arguments by supplying ammunition to both sides. Women can note that, despite the increasing rates, the fatality rate for women is 34 deaths per million miles driven, while that for men is more than twice as high, at 77, according to the latest statistics available.

Men can note and quote the Safety Council's remark that men have higher rates, in part, because they do most of the night driving and rural road driving, with these two categories by far the most hazardous of all driving.

No matter who wins any of the family arguments who's best or safest, women are going to be greatly outnumbered for years to come. Of the estimated 91 million drivers in this country, 57 million are men and 34 million are women.

BATTLE OF THE HOT LUNCH

ALMOST ON A PAR with Mother, Apple Pie and Old Glory as sacred American symbols is the National School Lunch Program, now in its 20th year of operation. Some 18 million children in 71,000 public and non-profit private schools will be served federally subsidized hot lunches under this program in the current school year.

Now comes President Johnson with this disturbing word: Because of the high costs of war in Viet Nam, the federal contribution of cash and surplus food to the lunch program will have to be cut back in fiscal 1967, except in poverty areas. Before the battle of the hot lunch is settled, however, the President may wish he had chosen to save money elsewhere in his budget.

THE LUNCH PROGRAM enables children to enjoy a complete lunch for an average payment of 27¢. This lunch actually costs about 50¢. But the Agriculture Department donates about 8¢ worth of food from surplus stocks and supplemental purchases, and 4 1/2¢ is provided in the form of a cash reimbursement. Another 11¢ of the lunch cost is picked up from state and local sources.

President Johnson proposes chopping $70 million off the federal school milk and school lunch programs in the fiscal year beginning next July 1. Both federal cash contributions and the support for supplemental food purchases would be slashed. Moreover, the Agriculture Department is working on a new formula under which so-called "well-to-do schools" would have to buy virtually all the food without government financial help. This would help to pay for new poverty-oriented school meal programs, such as giving school breakfasts to needy children in slum areas.

Even before the budget-cutting step was announced, the school lunch program was in trouble. Many school systems were reporting a sizeable reduction in the amount of basic commodities, meat and cheese, they were receiving from Uncle Sam. With surplus food stocks dwindling, the local systems had no choice but to purchase more of these items on the local market at going prices.

Thus the price charged for the plate lunches has been rising. A charge of 35¢ per lunch--$1.75 a week--is now common. For parents with three or more children in school the answer frequently is to start packing lunches at home. A vicious spiral ensues as the number of children buying lunches falls and unit costs rise.

AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT officials concede that the price of school lunches in many cities has gone as high as it can go without driving kids out of the cafeteria line. The alternative seems to be for local school boards to start providing greater financial support for the program. Not all systems now include in the school budget the administrative expenses required of the school lunch program--a central staff, equipment, warehousing and delivery system.

Some observers still expect Congress to come to the rescue. It enacted the National School Lunch Act in 1946 "to safeguard the health and well-being of the nation's children and to encourage the domestic consumption of nutritious agricultural commodities and other foods." The higher price of a school meal ticket is one issue that touches millions of homes in the country. In an election year, few members of Congress wish to tangle with the mothers' lobby.

When a neighbor calls for a Heart Sunday contribution, remember that Heart and blood vessel disease is your number one health enemy, causing about 54% of all deaths.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Motorcycling is enjoying a boom today among grownups as well as the leather jacket crowd. Some 700,000 Americans own motor bikes. But motor cycling is still a dangerous sport. The death rate is 13 per year for each 10,000 cycles, compared to six deaths for each 10,000 motor cars.

However, the public is entitled to know when the speeches of a representative or senator are written by a foreign agent. That is why Congress passed the Foreign Agents Registration act. This makes a foreign agent an important public figure, despite opinions recently rendered by local D. C. courts.

Gen. Klein, however, insisted to Sen. Fulbright that he was not paid by the government but by a private group. "It is a group," he said, "that you find in every city that people get together, whether the members are bankers or chaplains or doctors, of all business life."

Fulbright, peering professor-like through glasses half way down his nose, asked whether the group was "under the control of the Bonn government."

"This is not correct, Mr. Chairman," said Klein.

"It is not?" asked Fulbright in a tone of mild surprise.

"No," repeated Klein under oath. "On the contrary. This is not correct."

Klein was more candid, however, in his confessions to another committee member. In preparing secret "briefing memos" for Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., Klein acknowledged that his client was indeed under the West German government's control.

Dodd did not turn this startling information over the committee, however, so it could bring perjury charges against Klein. He used the secret memos instead for guidance in approaching German leaders last year at Klein's behest. GOVERNMENT SUPPORTED The senator tried to convince them that the Foreign Relations committee's criticism of Klein had been misunderstood and that they shouldn't cancel Klein's contract.

Klein furnished Dodd with a list of people to see in Germany, plus a background memo on each one.

In the memo on Dr. Gerhard Hempel, Klein informed the senator:

"Dr. Hempel is the former Lord Mayor of Wiemar and the secretary general of the Society for the Promotion of German-American cooperation, whose public relations interest I represent in the United States."

"The Society is supported, naturally, through the influence of the German Chancellery and whether they continue to use me depends on the good will in the Chancellery in Bonn."

In another memo on West Germany's Secretary of State Karl Carstens, Klein wrote: "Carstens was the man who gave support to the German group -- The Society to Promote German - American cooperation, Wiesbaden -- that engaged me to handle political public relations. He is the KEY to this problem as without the support from his office the Wiesbaden group could not function."

"For your information, Carstens' office subsidized or contributed heavily to the Wiesbaden group which engaged me at the recommendation of Chancellor Adenauer originally."

ALL THE WAY WITH JK The background memo on Dr. Heinrich Von Brentano, the former Foreign Minister, identified him as one of Klein's most staunch supporters.

"I visited him two weeks ago," wrote Klein, "and he will go all the way. He is the best friend and supporter I have -- 100 per cent for me."

Klein also prepared a memo on Hermann J. Abs, whose name should have been familiar to Dodd as a former prosecutor of the Nuremberg war crimes. Abs was not found guilty of any war crimes, but he was perhaps the leading financier in the Nazi regime. Wrote Klein: "Mr. Abs is a leading German banker and a member of the Board of Directors of many of our commercial clients. The brunt of the attacks against me began when I started to fight for Abs."

He referred to a report in this column on February 23, 1958, that West German industrialists had hired "a prominent Illinois Republican, Gen. Julius Klein, to work with Hitler's former financier, Hermann Abs, in order to tap the United States treasury for the return of German property."

"POOR" BANKER ABS What this column reported regarding banker Abs was that he had paid Gen. Klein $40,000 plus expenses to lobby for the return of German property and that, though Klein claimed Abs was a poor victim of Hitler, "The fact is that Abs was one of the top bankers under Hitler, a director of I. G. Farben, a director of the Deutsche bank; and Sen. Smathers of Florida has put in the congressional record proof that Abs was a member of the German bankers who participated in wresting away Jewish - owned property under Hitler."

This column also reported: "A confidential cable sent to Washington by U. S. Political Adviser Robert Murphy in 1948 reported: 'Abs cooperated hand-in-glove during the Third Reich with leading political personalities of the government, industry and (Nazi) party circles.'"

"He became prominent in 1937 as Chief of the Foreign Department of the Deutsche bank and was in many circles considered to be the most brilliant and energetic of the Deutsche bank's board of directors. Subject took important role in Imperialistic expansion of Deutsche bank following Nazi political and military absorption."

Such was one of the West German clients who paid the former commander of the Jewish War Veterans to write speeches for a United States Senator and propagandize various congressmen.

HELLO! Hope your weekend was as nice as ours. The children and I went to our former church in Paducah and then spent the day visiting with relatives and friends. The only little snag was coming home we had a blow out, but my sons are very efficient and got the tire changed in no time and we were back on our way.

The City Association meeting was not too well attended but the bad weather had a great deal to do with that, I'm sure. There was a slight misunderstanding about the City Association meetings. I was asked several times about who was to attend. All women bowlers in the leagues here in town are members of this organization. When you purchase your sanction card at the beginning of the season you are automatically a member of the City Association and all open meetings you should attend. For those that did come several door prizes were awarded. Ziegenhorn Insurance gave four pens and pencil sets and these were won by Mary Meyers, Ruby Smith, Sandy York and Mildred Cockrell. Canvas Products donated a 50 ft. ground soaker which Billie Garner won. First National Bank gave a Tu-Tier Tiddit tray which Lillie Acord got and Lois Cokenour won a very beautiful conversation piece donated by DeLine Beauty and Gift shop.

In the Friday Bowlett league Jo Robbins had an odd sequence of games with 121, 141, 161.

The Imperiaettes did not bowl this week because of weather and only half of the Tuesday Housewives league did. I'll have a full report of their games next week.

Jr. High Advances In Tourney

ESSEX -- Sikeston's Jr. High "A" team Bullpups won their first round game in the Richmond Invitational Tournament here last night by handing Bell City a 53-25 defeat.

Sikeston played reserves most of the game, as the starters raced to a 12-2 first period lead allowing the reserves to get into action. Bell City raced to within one point of the Bullpups at half time but fell behind at the end of the third period 32-19 and never threatened again as Sikeston scored 21 points in the fourth and final quarter to Bell City's six.

Farris and Towns led Sikeston scorers with 14 and 10 points respectively, while Davis of Bell City scored 11 points for his team.

The Jr. High "B" team won another game here last night as they defeated Scott Central 30-28 in a thriller.

Sikeston's winning margin came in the second period as they outscored their opponents six points to four points and this proved to be the winning margin as each team scored even the first third and fourth periods.

Cartwright led Sikeston scorers with 15 points and took high game honors as Raby of Scott Central was second with 12 points.

Sikeston will play their last regularly scheduled game here tomorrow night as Jackson attempts to revenge an earlier loss.

Nebraska, Big Eight Leader

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer
The 9th-ranked Nebraska Huskers have reached the half-way point in the Big Eight basketball race with four road victories in a perfect 7-0 record, the latest an 85-81 barn-burner at Oklahoma.

Joe Cipriano's club removed any doubts anyone might have had about its championship chances by sweeping a critical two-game Oklahoma swing. The Huskers had a narrow escape at Oklahoma State, 45-41 in overtime.

Their trip concludes tonight at Oklahoma City, a 17-3 club with the nation's fourth-highest scoring average and the nation's top rebounder, James Ware.

Make no mistake about it, Nebraska is now strongly in the driver's seat in the Big Eight. Their last defeat in a 15-2 season was to Kansas in the finals of the league holiday tournament, but 6-foot-6 Willie Campbell, their tallest starter, missed that game with an injury.

Kansas, the nation's no. 7 team, is 6-1 in the league and 15-3 for all games. The Jayhawks play Nebraska at Lawrence, Kan., Feb. 26, but Kansas still faces a trip to Kansas State, where Nebraska has a victory.

K-State stayed in the race at 4-2 by beating Hank Iba's Oklahoma State team at its own ball-control game, 50-44 at Manhattan Monday night. Colorado evened its record at 3-3 by winning 65-60 at Missouri.

Nebraska used its ball-stealing court press to run up a 63-49 bulge 6 1/2 minutes into the last half and still led 79-70 with 4:27 left. But Oklahoma used a press for a fiery rally. Don Sidle's three-point play made it 83-81 with 28 seconds left. Then OUS Terry Due, a sophomore, stole it seconds later, headed for the goal and lost it on steps.

All five Husker starters scored in double figures, Tom Baack getting 25.

Three men scored all but 12 of OUS points. Skinny Jim Johnson had 25, high-leaping Willie Rogers 24 and the 6-8 Sidle added 20. Nebraska hit 42 percent, OUS 50, but the Huskers led 40-27 in rebounds and forced 18 OUS errors.

K-State played keep-away with a four-point lead the last seven minutes, with Larry Weigel's wide-open layup with 15 seconds left the only bucket. K-State had the ball five of the seven minutes and took only one other shot. Earl Seyfert, 6-7 K-State sophomore, had 14 points and 13 rebounds. Jim Feamster led OUS with 15.

Missouri's Ron Coleman, a 25-point scorer, pulled the Tigers into a 49-49 tie with 9:41 left, but MU hit a long cold spell and Colorado pulled away. Bob Bauers and Chuck Williams had 18 points each for the Buffs, who controlled the boards 40-34.

Red Sox's Sign Missouri Baseball Star

ST. LOUIS AP--The anger of colleges at major league raids of collegiate baseball talent flared again Monday after University of Missouri outfielder Dan Rudanovich signed with the Boston Red Sox.

Missouri Coach John C. Hi Simmons, who has lost five players with remaining eligibility in the last six years, called the signing "unfair and unethical."

"The commissioner of baseball should enact some legislation to prevent promiscuous signing of boys out of college," he said. "If we don't put a stop to mid-year drafting of college players, the colleges will lose the nucleus of their clubs each spring."

However, Simmons received a return blast from Red Sox scout Don Lenhardt, who singled Rudanovich, 21, of St. Louis, who was fourth in the nation last year with a .463 batting average in 22 games.

Lenhardt called Simmons "way off base."
"How could I sign him if he didn't want to sign?" Lenhardt asked. "He (Rudanovich) named a figure -- and we gave it to him."

Rudanovich is believed to have signed for about $25,000. "They're not any more interested in Dan's earning a degree than we are," Lenhardt added. "I don't see what they're shouting about -- colleges recruit kids, too don't they?"

"This happens all the time. And I can't see that it's unethical. As long as it's legal, I'm home free. I do what the club tells me to do. If Dan had waited until he'd graduated, though, he'd have lost his bargaining value."

According to baseball protocol, clubs can't sign collegians in their freshman or sophomore year, but anything goes in the third and fourth years.

Simmons said baseball should follow the policies of football and basketball, waiting until collegians finished their eligibility before an offer is made. "We have a pretty good arrangement with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Kansas City A's," he said, "but the eastern clubs aren't as understanding."

Present major leaguers who played for Missouri and Simmons include John Sevcik of the Minnesota Twins, Mike Shannon of Cardinals, Charlie James of the Cincinnati Reds, Sonny Siebert of the Cleveland Indians, Dennis Musgraves of the New York Mets and John O'Donoghue of the A's.

Mets Sign Ron Hunt, To 1966 Contract

NEW YORK (AP) -- Ron Hunt became the 21st New York Met to sign his contract when he agreed to accept a $25,000 salary Monday but the National League tail-enders may not find it so easy to corral some of the other regulars.

Four full-time performers already have indicated they are going to be difficult to get into the fold. They are pitcher Jack Fisher, outfielder Johnny Lewis, catcher Chris Cannizzaro and first baseman Ed Kranepool.

Fisher, in particular, figures to be a headache to the Met brass since he is believed to be asking $25,000 to pitch next season. This amounts to about a $7,000 raise, a boost club President George Weiss considers to be out of line since the 27-year-old right-hander won only eight while losing 24.

Johnny Murphy, administrative assistant to Weiss, said the club had offered Fisher a token raise. An educated guess is that Fisher has been offered a $1,000 increase.

Despite his poor won-and-lost record, Fisher was the ace of the Mets' staff. He hurled 254 innings, the most on the club, completed 10 of 36 starts and had a respectable 3.93 earned run average with a 10th-place club.

A matter of $5,000 stands between Lewis and the club. The hard throwing outfielder who batted .245 with 15 home runs last year, has been offered a reported $12,000, which is $3,000 more than he earned in 1965, but he is understood to be asking $17,000.

Kentucky Moves Ahead of Duke 'n AP College Basketball Poll

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
Duke found out today that it does not pay not to play.

The Blue Devils, who have held the No. 1 spot in the Associated Press major-college basketball rankings for eight consecutive weeks, dropped into second place today as unbeaten Kentucky moved to the top for the first time this season.

And chances are Kentucky's three impressive victories -- coupled with Duke's seven days of idleness -- brought about the flip-flop.

Duke now has played only one game in the last three weeks. The first two weeks were taken up by mid-year exams but the third week was simply a case of not being able to schedule a game.

"We tried very hard to shift dates and arrange a game for this week," said Duke Coach Vic Bubas, "but we just couldn't do it. We've practiced daily, but there's nothing like playing."

The voters apparently saw it that way too with the Wildcats drawing 20 first-place votes and 341 points from a select panel of sportswriters and sportscasters voting in The AP poll. Kentucky brought its record to 17-0 by beating Alabama 82-62, Vanderbilt 105-90 and Georgia 74-50 last week.

Duke, which finally got into action Monday night, showed the voters a 15-1 record through Saturday's games and received 12 first-place votes and 304 points.

And in Monday night's game, the Blue Devils' 13-game winning streak was halted by West Virginia, 94-90.

The voting, with records through Saturday, and points:

1. Kentucky 17-0	341
2. Duke 15-1	304
3. Chicago Loyola	210
4. Texas Western 16-0	205
5. Vanderbilt 16-3	177
6. Providence 15-1	176
7. Kansas 15-3	117

Jr. High Advances In Tourney

ESSEX -- Sikeston's Jr. High "A" team Bullpups won their first round game in the Richland Invitational Tournament here last night by handing Bell City a 53-25 defeat.

Sikeston played reserves most of the game, as the starters raced to a 12-2 first period lead allowing the reserves to get into action. Bell City raced to within one point of the Bullpups at half time but fell behind at the end of the third period 32-19 and never threatened again as Sikeston scored 21 points in the fourth and final quarter to Bell City's six.

Farris and Towns led Sikeston scorers with 14 and 10 points respectively, while Davis of Bell City scored 11 points for his team.

The Jr. High "B" team won another game here last night as they defeated Scott Central 30-28 in a thriller.

Sikeston's winning margin came in the second period as they outscored their opponents six points to four points and this proved to be the winning margin as each team scored even the first third and fourth periods.

Cartwright led Sikeston scorers with 15 points and took high game honors as Raby of Scott Central was second with 12 points.

Sikeston will play their last regularly scheduled game here tomorrow night as Jackson attempts to revenge an earlier loss.

Nebraska, Big Eight Leader

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer
The 9th-ranked Nebraska Huskers have reached the half-way point in the Big Eight basketball race with four road victories in a perfect 7-0 record, the latest an 85-81 barn-burner at Oklahoma.

Joe Cipriano's club removed any doubts anyone might have had about its championship chances by sweeping a critical two-game Oklahoma swing. The Huskers had a narrow escape at Oklahoma State, 45-41 in overtime.

Their trip concludes tonight at Oklahoma City, a 17-3 club with the nation's fourth-highest scoring average and the nation's top rebounder, James Ware.

Make no mistake about it, Nebraska is now strongly in the driver's seat in the Big Eight. Their last defeat in a 15-2 season was to Kansas in the finals of the league holiday tournament, but 6-foot-6 Willie Campbell, their tallest starter, missed that game with an injury.

Kansas, the nation's no. 7 team, is 6-1 in the league and 15-3 for all games. The Jayhawks play Nebraska at Lawrence, Kan., Feb. 26, but Kansas still faces a trip to Kansas State, where Nebraska has a victory.

KState stayed in the race at 4-2 by beating Hank Iba's Oklahoma State team at its own ball-control game, 50-44 at Manhattan Monday night. Colorado evened its record at 3-3 by winning 65-60 at Missouri.

Nebraska used its ball-leading court press to run up a 63-49 bulge 6 1/2 minutes into the last half and still led 79-70 with 4:27 left. But Oklahoma used a press for a fiery rally. Don Sidle's three-point play made it 83-81 with 28 seconds left. Then OUS Terry Due, a sophomore, stole it seconds later, headed for the goal and lost it on steps.

All five Husker starters scored in double figures, Tom Baack getting 25.

Three men scored all but 12 of OUS' points. Skinny Jim Johnson had 25, high-leaping Willie Rogers 24 and the 6-8 Sidle added 20. Nebraska hit 42 percent, OUS 50, but the Huskers led 40-27 in rebounds and forced 18 OUS errors.

KState played keep-away with a four-point lead the last seven minutes, with Larry Weigel's wide-open layup with 15 seconds left the only bucket. KState had the ball five of the seven minutes and took only one other shot. Earl Seyfert, 6-7 KState sophomore, had 14 points and 13 rebounds. Jim Feamster led OUS with 15.

Missouri's Ron Coleman, a 25-point scorer, pulled the Tigers into a 49-49 tie with 9:41 left, but MU hit a long cold spell and Colorado pulled away. Bob Bauers and Chuck Williams had 18 points each for the Buffs, who controlled the boards 40-34.

Red Sox's Sign Missouri Baseball Star

ST. LOUIS AP-- The anger of colleges at major league raids of collegiate baseball talent flared again Monday after University of Missouri outfielder Dan Rudanovich signed with the Boston Red Sox.

Missouri Coach John C. Hi Simmons, who has lost five players with remaining eligibility in the last six years, called the signing "unfair and unethical."

"The commissioner of baseball should enact some legislation to prevent promiscuous signing of boys out of college," he said. "If we don't put a stop to mid-year drafting of college players, the colleges will lose the nucleus of their clubs each spring."

However, Simmons received a return blast from Red Sox scout Don Lenhardt, who singled Rudanovich, 21, of St. Louis, who was fourth in the nation last year with a .463 batting average in 22 games.

Lenhardt called Simmons "way off base." "How could I sign him if he didn't want to sign?" Lenhardt asked. "He (Rudanovich) named a figure -- and we gave it to him."

Rudanovich is believed to have signed for about $25,000. "They're not any more interested in Dan's earning a degree than we are," Lenhardt added. "I don't see what they're shouting about -- colleges recruit kids, too don't they?"

"This happens all the time. And I can't see that it's unethical. As long as it's legal, I'm home free. I do what the club tells me to do. If Dan had waited until he'd graduated, though, he'd have lost his bargaining value."

According to baseball protocol, clubs can't sign collegians in their freshman or sophomore year, but anything goes in the third and fourth years.

Simmons said baseball should follow the policies of football and basketball, waiting until collegians finished their eligibility before an offer is made. "We have a pretty good arrangement with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Kansas City A's," he said, "but the eastern clubs aren't as understanding."

Present major leaguers who played for Missouri and Simmons include John Sevcik of the Minnesota Twins, Mike Shannon of Cardinals, Charlie James of the Cincinnati Reds, Sonny Siebert of the Cleveland Indians, Dennis Metz of the New York Mets and John O'Donoghue of the A's.

Mets Sign Ron Hunt, To 1966 Contract

NEW YORK (AP) -- Ron Hunt became the 21st New York Met to sign his contract when he agreed to accept a $25,000 salary Monday but the National League tail-enders may not find it so easy to corral some of the other regulars.

Four full-time performers already have indicated they are going to be difficult to get into the fold. They are pitcher Jack Fisher, outfielder Johnny Lewis, catcher Chris Cannizzaro and first baseman Ed Kranepool.

Fisher, in particular, figures to be a headache to the Met brass since he is believed to be asking $25,000 to pitch next season. This amounts to about a $7,000 raise, a boost club President George Weiss considers to way out of line since the 27-year-old right-hander won only eight while losing 24.

Johnny Murphy, administrative assistant to Weiss, said the club had offered Fisher a token raise. An educated guess is that Fisher has been offered a $1,000 increase.

Despite his poor won-and-lost record, Fisher was the ace of the Mets' staff. He hurled 254 innings, the most on the club, completed 10 of 36 starts and had a respectable 3.95 earned run average with a 10th-place club.

A matter of $5,000 stands between Lewis and the club. The hard throwing outfielder who batted .245 with 15 home runs last year, has been offered a reported $12,000, which is $3,000 more than he earned in 1965, but he is understood to be asking $17,000.

Kentucky Moves Ahead of Duke 'In AP College Basketball Poll

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
Duke found out today that it does not pay not to play.

The Blue Devils, who have held the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press major-college basketball rankings for eight consecutive weeks, dropped into second place today as unbeaten Kentucky moved to the top for the first time this season.

And chances are Kentucky's three impressive victories -- coupled with Duke's seven days of idleness -- brought about the flip-flop.

Duke now has played only one game in the last three weeks. The first two weeks were taken up by mid-year exams but the third week was simply a case of not being able to schedule a game.

"We tried very hard to shift dates and arrange a game for this week," said Duke Coach Vic Bubbs, "but we just couldn't do it. We've practiced daily, but there's nothing like playing."

The voters apparently saw it that way too with the Wildcats drawing 20 first-place votes and 341 points from a select panel of sportswriters and sportscasters voting in The AP poll. Kentucky brought its record to 17-0 by beating Alabama 82-62, Vanderbilt 105-90 and Georgia 74-50 last week.

Duke, which finally got into action Monday night, showed the voters a 15-1 record through Saturday's games and received 12 first-place votes and 304 points.

And in Monday night's game, the Blue Devils' 13-game winning streak was halted by West Virginia, 94-90.

The voting, with records through Saturday, and points:

1. Kentucky 17-0	341
2. Duke 15-1	304
3. Chicago Loyola	210
4. Texas Western 16-0	205
5. Vanderbilt 16-3	177
6. Providence 15-1	176
7. Kansas 15-3	117
8. St. Joseph's Pa. 15-1	106
9. Nebraska 14-2	60
10. Michigan 12-5	33

JESSIE JAMES ROBERTS, JR.

Badman Joins FBI List

WASHINGTON -- Jessie James Roberts, Jr., a hulking and notorious southern badman with a quick trigger finger, currently charged with a two-state bank robbery spree, has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."

On Dec. 21, while free on bond pending appeal of a conviction for burglarizing a Tennessee post office, Roberts allegedly robbed at gun point the Bank of Quapaw, Quapaw, Oklahoma, of $34,144. The bank robber forced two female tellers to open the safe and place the contents into a white pillow case before he closed them in the vault and fled in a getaway car parked in the alley behind the bank.

Shortly after noon on January 10, 1966, Roberts allegedly robbed the Bank of Lenox, Lenox, Georgia, of $38,322 and some 40 minutes later attempted to rob the Bank of Alapaha, Alapaha, Georgia, some 20 miles away. The holdup was thwarted when a bank official grabbed at the robber's gun, causing the bandit to flee. As the robber drove off in a stolen car, a bank vice president rushed out and began shooting at the fleeing car. The bandit returned the fire, one bullet grazing the banker's head, slightly wounding him.

Warrants charging Roberts with bank robbery were issued at Tulsa, Oklahoma, on January 6, 1966, and at Valdosta, Georgia, on January 11, 1966. In addition, Roberts is charged with burglarizing a post office at Milledgeville, South Carolina, on December 5, 1965, and subsequently cashing numerous postal money orders throughout the South and Midwest. Federal warrants charging him with post office burglary and with passing stolen postal money orders have been issued at Greenville, South Carolina, and Nashville, Tennessee.

Roberts, who towers well over 6', is a widely known notorious criminal, convicted of operating a large auto theft ring in the South in 1948. His car thefting activities included the theft of cars in small towns and the transportation in a van to Atlanta where they were sold. He has been convicted of assault with intent to commit armed robbery, post office burglary, larceny, attempted escape, interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle and interstate transportation of fraudulent checks.

A white American, Roberts was born at Sylvester, Georgia, on November 13, 1920. He is 6'3" to 6'4" tall, weighs 240 to 265 pounds, has a heavy build, ruddy complexion, blue eyes and dark brown, graying hair. He has a small scar on the lower left cheek, one on the palm of his right hand and one on his right wrist. He may disguise himself with a plastic, flesh-colored mask and may also wear a false mustache.

Roberts has worked as an automobile body man, car salesman, carpenter, insurance salesman and truck driver. Despite having a reputation for high intelligence and being a high school honor student, Roberts has spent most of his adult life in prison.

He is reportedly a glib conversationalist with a pleasing personality who dresses neatly and conservatively, sometimes frequents night clubs, gambles extensively, can fly an airplane, learned Spanish and practiced creative writing while imprisoned and does not drink although well experienced in making illegal moonshine liquor.

Roberts is known to conceal guns on his person, will attempt to escape at any opportunity and is considered heavily armed and extremely dangerous.

Should any person have any information concerning him, he is requested to immediately notify the nearest office of the FBI, the telephone number of which may be found on the first page of local telephone directories.

Change in Roast Proves Welcome For New Year

Familiar roasts have undoubtedly done the rounds during the past month or so. When you want to try something different, select veal.

Either a rolled veal shoulder or rump makes an excellent change-of-pace meat for this dry heat method of cooking. Explains Reba Stages, meat authority. The delicate flavor appeals and makes a delicious main course with double baked potatoes, Harvard beets, molded cole slaw and bananas with gingerbread and whipped cream.

Veal contains almost no fat as an outer covering so strips of bacon are advised as topping for this roast.

Veal Rump or Shoulder Roast
3 to 4-pound veal rump or
3 to 4-pound rolled veal shoulder
Salt and pepper
4 to 6 slices of bacon, if desired

Season the roast with salt and pepper. Place on rack in an open roasting pan. Place bacon slices over meat. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb reaches the center of the roast, making sure the bulb does not rest in fat or on bone. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (300° F.) to 325° F. approximately 2 1/2 hours or until meat thermometer registers 170° F. Allow 40 to 45 minutes per pound for roasting time.

Hawks and Doves Agree that U.S. Is Drifting into Bigger Conflict

EDITOR'S NOTE — In and out of Congress, questions are being raised as to just how the United States got into the present situation in Viet Nam, and what is the legal basis for its actions. In the following analysis, these issues are explored by John M. Hightower, Pulitzer Prize winning reporter of The Associated Press.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the spreading Senate debate over Vietnamese war policy, the hawks and the doves agree on one issue:

They feel the United States is drifting into a bigger and much more dangerous conflict and they want to know what President Johnson plans to do about it.

The two-front attack on his policy — from those who want it softer and those who would get tougher — threatens a severe challenge to Johnson's war leadership in the weeks ahead.

But it is also a challenge to the meaning of 10 years of violent history. For U.S. intervention in the Viet Nam has built from the beginning a record of disappointed hopes, rising costs and drift into a war both dangerous and undeclared.

Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and a critic of Johnson's policies, told Secretary of State Dean Rusk a few days ago that he doubted the existence of an adequate legal base for what the United States is doing in Viet Nam, going back to the start of the policy 10 years ago.

Yet Fulbright said that the raising of questions does not necessarily mean opposition to policy but primarily a desire for clarification.

"There is a lack of understanding of the situation in Viet Nam," Fulbright said. "All I am asking for is a clarification of United States policy."

Behind some of the senatorial attacks on Johnson's policy seems to lie concern over the fact that the shooting conflict has never been declared by Congress as a war, is not being fought under United Nations sponsorship as was the war in Korea, and involves an open-ended commitment which could mean war with Communist China some day, perhaps even nuclear war with the Soviet Union.

Johnson has every confidence — as he has made clear publicly and privately — that he has all the authority he needs to conduct military operations and commit more and more forces as he judges necessary. He also recognizes that Congress has the power to deny its approval of what he does and to withhold money.

But administration officials generally see the leadership issue as posed in more subtle terms. Some at least believe the debate now developing may help to clarify policy and meet unspoken but presumably widespread concern among the citizenry at large.

The situation which Johnson faces, however, is one known also to his predecessors. The Vietnamese policy has always been full of uncertainties.

It began in 1954 when the Viet Minh rebels, including today's Communist leaders in North Viet Nam, finally defeated French forces and put an end to French control. The United States had given arms aid to the French and the Eisenhower administration considered, but finally withheld, actual combat support.

In the beginning Washington's mood was one of determination not to lose any more territory to Communist control. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles held the "domino theory" that a loss of all Viet Nam would lead to the loss of other countries in the area.

With the 1954 Geneva peace settlement, Viet Nam was divided between pro-Communists ruling in Hanoi in the North and the U.S.-supported government in the South. The U.S. support was small at that time, 1954-55. It consisted of financial assistance and limited military help in building up defense forces, at the request of the South Vietnamese government. The U.S. military assistance mission started out at 327 officers and men. Today more than 197,000 American troops are engaged in Viet Nam.

In the enormous leap, over a decade, from the initial military advisory mission to the present expeditionary force, four presidential decisions were of overriding importance:

1. The first was the initial determination by President Dwight D. Eisenhower to support the regime of premier, later president, Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam. Following the Geneva settlements in the spring — which the United States supported but did not sign — Eisenhower wrote Diem that the United States would thereafter give aid directly to the government of South Viet Nam instead of through the French. It was generally understood that this was another move in the general policy of containing communism.

2. The next great decision was made by President John F. Kennedy in December 1961. The Communist forces, which had first gone underground or gone north and later launched a terror campaign in South Viet Nam, had by then started the guerrilla warfare. Kennedy's decision was to expand greatly the U.S. military assistance effort and to put U.S. aircraft into operation in support of Vietnamese ground troops.

Thus Americans began shortly to be involved in combat actions though on a small scale and technically as "advisers."

3. President Johnson made the third big decision. That was to send American combat units into South Viet Nam in increasing numbers, with a reported target level at that time at 125,000 men before the end of 1965. The level was several times increased as the Viet Cong forces and North Viet Nam also enlarged their efforts.

4. The fourth decision, also made by Johnson, was to bomb North Viet Nam starting Feb. 7, 1965. This radically changed the terms of the war by directly threatening the existence of a Communist state with closest ties to Red China and the Soviet Union. At the same time it radically reversed the moral in South Viet Nam and was one of the acts which probably prevented a Communist victory in the South within a few months.

Each of those decisions and many others by Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson had a profound effect on the future development of the conflict with communism in South. east Asia. Each was also marked by a hope that it would be enough to turn the tide, and thus each was followed by a sense of shock or disappointment.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has been more severely criticized on this point than any other official because at one point McNamara thought the Communist threat could be brought under control and reduction of U.S. forces started by the end of last year.

Each successive crisis in the Vietnamese struggle has been accompanied or followed by soul-searching debate in Washington over the course the country should follow. In the past year, as the war escalated, the issue of the President's powers has been raised many times. In essence the two sides of the argument are simple.

Johnson takes the position that he has had ample constitutional power as commander in chief to order military action in Viet Nam. Congressional critics argued that the Constitution vested in Congress the power to declare war. The State Department's position has been for many years that a declaration of war is a formality which brings many laws, national and international, into being and that in the case of Viet Nam this would be a handicap instead of a help.

The United States sponsored a defense treaty for Southeast Asia in 1954, committing this country and several allies, including Britain, to consult on protection of the area against Communist aggression. But the treaty did not take effect until Feb. 19, 1955, after the first U.S. commitments were made.

Johnson relies much more on a resolution which Congress adopted in August 1964, shortly after the Gulf of Tonkin incidents. Communist gunboats had attacked U.S. naval vessels off North Viet Nam and the United States retaliated by bombing coastal positions in North Viet Nam.

The resolution stated that Congress "approves and supports" the determination of the President "as commander in chief" to take all necessary measures to repel attacks against U.S. forces "and to prevent further aggression."

Fulbright, who was strategist for the resolution in the Senate, took the position at the time that it neither expanded nor limited the President's powers under the Constitution. The administration has argued since that its real purpose was to show congressional support for the President's course in Viet Nam and this has provided a basis for all the President has done since.

The U.S. position under Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson has been that Communist aggression repeatedly created the challenges to which the United States reacted.

When the war with France ended and Viet Nam was divided, an estimated 40,000 Viet Minh troops of Southern origin chose to go into the Communist

JESSIE JAMES ROBERTS, JR.

Badman Joins FBI List

WASHINGTON -- Jessie James Roberts, Jr., a hulking and notorious southern badman with a quick trigger finger, currently charged with a two-state bank robbery spree, has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."

On Dec. 21, while free on bond pending appeal of a conviction for burglarizing a Tennessee post office, Roberts allegedly robbed at gun point the Bank of Quapaw, Quapaw, Oklahoma, of $34,144. The bank robber forced two female tellers to open the safe and place the contents into a white pillow case before he closed them in the vault and fled in a getaway car parked in the alley behind the bank.

Shortly after noon on January 10, 1966, Roberts allegedly robbed the Bank of Lenox, Lenox, Georgia, of $38,322 and some 40 minutes later attempted to rob the Bank of Alapaha, Alapaha, Georgia, some 20 miles away. The holdup was thwarted when a bank official grabbed at the robber's gun, causing the bandit to flee. As the robber drove off in a stolen car, a bank vice president rushed out and began shooting at the fleeing car. The bandit returned the fire, one bullet grazing the banker's head, slightly wounding him.

Warrants charging Roberts with bank robbery were issued at Tulsa, Oklahoma, on January 6, 1966, and at Valdosta, Georgia, on January 11, 1966. In addition, Roberts is charged with burglarizing a post office at Milledgeville, South Carolina, on December 5, 1965, and subsequently cashing numerous postal money orders throughout the South and Midwest. Federal warrants charging him with post office burglary and with passing stolen postal money orders have been issued at Greenville, South Carolina, and Nashville, Tennessee.

Roberts, who towers well over 6', is a widely known notorious criminal, convicted of operating a large auto theft ring in the South in 1948. His car theft ring activities included the theft of cars in small towns and the transportation in a van to Atlanta where they were sold. He has been convicted of assault with intent to commit armed robbery, post office burglary, larceny, attempted escape, interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle and interstate transportation of fraudulent checks.

A white American, Roberts was born at Sylvester, Georgia, on November 13, 1920. He is 6'3" to 6'4" tall, weighs 240 to 265 pounds, has a heavy build, ruddy complexion, blue eyes and dark brown, graying hair. He has a small scar on the lower left cheek, one on the palm of his right hand and one on his right wrist. He may disguise himself with a plastic, flesh-colored mask and may also wear a false mustache.

Roberts has worked as an automobile body man, car salesman, carpenter, insurance salesman and truck driver. Despite having a reputation for high intelligence and being a high school honor student, Roberts has spent most of his adult life in prison.

He is reportedly a glib conversationalist with a pleasing personality who dresses neatly and conservatively, sometimes frequents night clubs, gambles extensively, can fly an airplane, learned Spanish and practiced creative writing while imprisoned and does not drink although well experienced in making illegal moonshine liquor.

Roberts is known to conceal guns on his person, will attempt to escape at any opportunity and is considered heavily armed and extremely dangerous.

Should any person have any information concerning him, he is requested to immediately notify the nearest office of the FBI, the telephone number of which may be found on the first page of local telephone directories.

Change in Roast Proves Welcome For New Year

Familiar roasts have undoubtedly done the rounds during the past month or so. When you want to try something different, select veal.

Either a rolled veal shoulder or rump makes an excellent change-of-pace meat for this dry heat method of cooking. Explains Reba Staggs, meat authority. The delicate flavor appeals and makes a delicious main course with double baked potatoes. Harvard beets, molded cole slaw and bananas with gingerbread and whipped cream.

Veal contains almost no fat as an outer covering so strips of bacon are advised as topping for this roast.

Veal Rump or Shoulder Roast
3 to 4-pound veal rump or
3 to 4-pound rolled veal shoulder
Salt and pepper
4 to 6 slices of bacon, if desired

Season the roast with salt and pepper. Place on rack in an open roasting pan. Place bacon slices over meat. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb reaches the center of the roast, making sure the bulb does not rest in fat or on bone. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (300° F.) to 325° F., approximately 2 1/2 hours or until meat thermometer registers 170° F. Allow 40 to 45 minutes per pound for roasting time.

Hawks and Doves Agree that U.S. Is Drifting into Bigger Conflict

EDITOR'S NOTE — In and out of Congress, questions are being raised as to just how the United States got into the present situation in Viet Nam, and what is the legal basis for its actions. In the following analysis, these issues are explored by John M. Hightower, Pulitzer Prize winning reporter of The Associated Press.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — In the spreading Senate debate over Vietnamese war policy, the hawks and the doves agree on one issue:

They feel the United States is drifting into a bigger and much more dangerous conflict and they want to know what President Johnson plans to do about it.

The two-front attack on his policy — from those who want it softer and those who would get tougher — threatens a severe challenge to Johnson's war leadership in the weeks ahead.

But it is also a challenge to the meaning of 10 years of violent history. For U.S. intervention in Viet Nam has built from the beginning a record of disappointed hopes, rising costs and drift into a war both dangerous and undeclared.

Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and a critic of Johnson's policies, told Secretary of State Dean Rusk a few days ago that he doubted the existence of an adequate legal base for what the United States is doing in Viet Nam, going back to the start of the policy 10 years ago.

Yet Fulbright said that the raising of questions does not necessarily mean opposition to policy but primarily a desire for clarification.

"There is a lack of understanding of the situation in Viet Nam," Fulbright said. "All I am asking for is a clarification of United States policy."

Behind some of the senatorial attacks on Johnson's policy seems to lie concern over the fact that the shooting conflict has never been declared by Congress as a war, is not being fought under United Nations sponsorship as was the war in Korea, and involves an open-ended commitment which could mean war with Communist China some day, perhaps even nuclear war with the Soviet Union.

Johnson has every confidence — as he has made clear publicly and privately — that he has all the authority he needs to conduct military operations and commit more and more forces as he judges necessary. He also recognizes that Congress has the power to deny its approval of what he does and to withhold money.

But administration officials generally see the leadership issue as posed in more subtle terms. Some at least believe the debate now developing may help to clarify policy and meet unspoken but presumably widespread concern among the citizenry at large.

The situation which Johnson faces, however, is one known also to his predecessors. The Vietnamese policy has always been full of uncertainties.

It began in 1954 when the Viet Minh rebels, including today's Communist leaders in North Viet Nam, finally defeated French forces and put an end to French control. The United States had given arms aid to the French and the Eisenhower administration considered, but finally withheld, actual combat support.

In the beginning Washington's mood was one of determination not to lose any more territory to Communist control. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles held the "domino theory" that a loss of all Viet Nam would lead to the loss of other countries in the area.

With the 1954 Geneva peace settlement, Viet Nam was divided between pro-Communist ruling in Hanoi in the North and the U.S.-supported government in the South. The U.S. support was small at that time, 1954-55. It consisted of financial assistance and limited military help in building up defense forces, at the request of the South Vietnamese government. The U.S. military assistance mission started out at 327 officers and men. Today more than 197,000 American troops are engaged in Viet Nam.

In the enormous leap, over a decade, from the initial military advisory mission to the present expeditionary force, four presidential decisions were of overriding importance:

1. The first was the initial determination by President Dwight D. Eisenhower to support the regime of premier, later president, Ngo Dinh Diem of South Viet Nam. Following the Geneva settlements in the spring — which the United States supported but did not sign — Eisenhower wrote Diem that the United States would thereafter give aid directly to the government of South Viet Nam instead of through the French. It was generally understood that this was another move in the general policy of containing communism.

2. The next great decision was made by President John F. Kennedy in December 1961. The Communist forces, which had first gone underground or gone north and later launched a terror campaign in South Viet Nam, had by then started the guerrilla warfare. Kennedy's decision was to expand greatly the U.S. military assistance effort and to put U.S. aircraft into operation in support of Vietnamese ground troops. Thus Americans began shortly to be involved in combat actions though on a small scale and technically as "advisers."

3. President Johnson made the third big decision. That was to send American combat units into South Viet Nam in increasing numbers, with a reported target level at that time at 125,000 men before the end of 1965. The level was several times increased as the Viet Cong forces and North Viet Nam also enlarged their efforts.

4. The fourth decision, also made by Johnson, was to bomb North Viet Nam starting Feb. 7, 1965. This radically changed the terms of the war by directly threatening the existence of a Communist state with close ties to Red China and the Soviet Union. At the same time it radically reversed the moral in South Viet Nam and was one of the acts which probably prevented a Communist victory in the South within a few months.

Each of those decisions and many others by Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson had a profound effect on the future development of the conflict with communism in South east Asia. Each was also marked by a hope that it would be enough to turn the tide, and thus each was followed by a sense of shock or disappointment.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has been more severely criticized on this point than any other official because at one point McNamara thought the Communist threat could be brought under control and reduction of U.S. forces started by the end of last year.

Each successive crisis in the Vietnamese struggle has been accompanied or followed by soul-searching debate in Washington over the course the country should follow. In the past year, as the war escalated, the issue of the President's powers has been raised many times. In essence the two sides of the argument are simple.

Johnson takes the position that he has had ample constitutional power as commander in chief to order military action in Viet Nam. Congressional critics argued that the Constitution vested in Congress the power to declare war. The State Department's position has been for many years that a declaration of war is a formality which brings many laws, national and international, into being and that in the case of Viet Nam this would be a handicap instead of a help.

The United States sponsored a defense treaty for Southeast Asia in 1954, committing this country and several allies, including Britain, to consult on protection of the area against Communist aggression. But the treaty did not take effect until Feb. 19, 1955, after the first U.S. commitments were made. Johnson relies much more on a resolution which Congress adopted in August 1964, shortly after the Gulf of Tonkin incidents. Communist gunboats had attacked U.S. naval vessels off North Viet Nam and the United States retaliated by bombing coastal positions in North Viet Nam.

The resolution stated that Congress "approves and supports" the determination of the President "as commander in chief" to take all necessary measures to repel attacks against U.S. forces "and to prevent further aggression."

Fulbright, who was strategist for the resolution in the Senate, took the position at the time that it neither expanded nor limited the President's powers under the Constitution. The administration has argued since that its real purpose was to show congressional support for the President's course in Viet Nam and this has provided a basis for all the President has done since.

The U.S. position under Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson has been that Communist aggression repeatedly created the challenges to which the United States reacted.

When the war with France ended and Viet Nam was divided, an estimated 40,000 Viet Minh troops of Southern origin chose to go into the Communist North. About 10,000 went underground in the South.

There followed a period of growing prosperity and relative political stability until about 1958 when the Communists in the South mounted a large-scale terror campaign against village and provincial officials. This precipitated a crisis which caused Eisenhower to increase assistance to Diem in 1960. The size of the military assistance group was raised from 327 to 385.

In 1959-61 thousands of the Viet Minh soldiers who had gone north began filtering back into the South and the Communist drive to take over the country began expanding into full-scale civil war. This led to a new appeal from Diem for help and Kennedy's decision in December 1961 to make a large increase in U.S. aid.

Last year President Johnson's decisions to send in U.S. combat forces and to bomb military targets in the North followed large-scale infiltration into South Viet Nam of regular North Vietnamese troops. This, coupled with an increase in Communist attacks and the political instability in Saigon, had brought South Viet Nam to the edge of despair and probable defeat.

In that situation the issue was resolved in favor of a larger U.S. commitment — the same way it had always been resolved in the past. It is this pattern which evidently worries many senators because they do not know where it will end.

They do not have any prospect of a firm answer from the administration, however. Rusk said recently that the questions whether there might ever be war with Red China was one for the Chinese to answer. He said it would depend on what the Chinese did; that the U.S. commitment to South Viet Nam was clear and unshakable.

What the Communist Enemy is Saying

We are today beginning the publication of Commander Karl Baarslag's pamphlet "What the Communists Are Saying About You."

Contrary to widespread misconception about Communists and how they operate, Communist propaganda does not necessarily involve the dissemination of Communist dogma and beliefs to the non-Communist world. The chief problem of Communists, even in this country, is not that of "selling Communism" to a wary or hostile world. The main strategic problem of the Communists on their long and difficult march to world power is first to keep non-Communists from ever forming any really effective united front against them. Dividing their enemies and intended victims and keeping them fighting each other is always the No. 1 objective of all Communists whether in a small local organization or on a nation-wide basis.

The second most important strategic consideration of the Communists is to decide precisely who is their most dangerous enemy and to exert every effort at its isolation from the rest of the non-Communist world. With Russia's resumption of the Cold War in 1945 against the rest of the non-Communist world, the Soviets very quickly made it plain as day that Uncle Sam was the Satan of Communist demonology. While there might be minor demons and lesser devils, they were little more than "lackeys" and "puppets" of the United States. America was the center of blackest "imperialist" reaction and hence the source of all the world's evils, ills, and troubles. Communist propaganda by radio, printed word, and film constantly harps on this single theme -- there will be no peace, freedom, or stability in the world until "American imperialism" is totally destroyed.

All Communist propaganda is therefore aimed at isolating the United States behind a high wall of universal suspicion and hatred. In reviewing the following summary-digest of worldwide Communist propaganda it must always be borne in mind that it was not prepared nor directed at informed and sophisticated Americans. Communist broadcasts and printed material, which may sound childish and self-defeating to most Americans, will receive an entirely different reception by semi-literate African Negro nationalists, the Israeli-hating Arab world, or abjectly impoverished Hindus and Latin-Americans. The fat, little rich boy of the neighborhood who has everything is seldom loved or even liked by his less fortunate neighbors. Don't laugh at Communist propaganda because it sounds foolish or hopelessly sectarian to you. Communists are not fools given to wasting time or money. They thoroughly know their audiences and their propaganda is always tailored to fit the weaknesses, gullibility, and credulousness of their particular targets. This is what they are telling the rest of the world about you.

COMMUNIST BROADCASTS-- MOSCOW, PEKING, HANOI Soviet broadcasts are generally more restrained in their attacks on the United States than Peking and other Communist states, at least in language. Moscow radio, both in Russian and in other languages for foreign consumption, devotes considerable space to panel discussions on U.S. policy and action in Vietnam. The American "war of aggression against peaceful North Vietnam" is nothing more than a desire to convert human blood, American as well as Vietnamese, into profits. How closely have the interests of Rockefeller, Morgan, and Chicago monopolists become embroiled in South Vietnam. And what a sinister mixture this is, consisting of oil, blood and dollars! The capital of Texas companies is also invested in one of three large firms engaged in marketing gasoline and other petroleum products in South Vietnam. According to U.S. publicist (Stan Opatowski) the present U.S. president is very closely linked. Do not these links largely determine present U.S. policy in Southeast Asia?

U.S. aggression in Vietnam is expanding. Thousands of people, women, old people, and children, are perishing at the hands of the overseas interventionists, and hundreds of American boys have lost their lives in the fire which is being kindled in Washington. But this causes little anxiety to the leaders of American big business. After all, blood abundantly shed on the long-suffering Vietnamese soil turns for them into a golden rain.

No assurance of disinterestedness, no demagogical talk about the defense of national honor can hide the fact that U.S. imperialism is ready to resort to any crime in Vietnam for the sake of preserving the profits of the American monopolies. (Moscow in English August 5, 1965)

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITAL

HOUSE COULD CARRY NO. 3 FIGHT TO BUDGET

A dissident faction of opponents to Amendment No. 3 could lay a stumbling block in the path of Gov. Warren Hearnes' 1966-67 budget recommendations, but Senate and House leaders appear to be approaching the March 1 budget session with an open mind regardless of factional differences. House Speaker Thomas Graham, a leading opponent to the Governor's commission form of reapportionment, the legislature, doubts there will be any carryover from the Jan. 14 special election to the 60-day budget session, but House members are not so optimistic. One high-ranking representative looks for disputes in the House appropriations committee which could be carried onto the floor of the House and expects the upcoming session to be one of the "hottest" he has attended.

He explained that the reapportionment controversy could be used as an excuse for balking over the budget, as several House members will face slim chances for re-election after reapportionment and will be staging a last ditch effort against the Governor. Two means of sabotaging the budget could be used -- one by over-appropriating and forcing the Governor to either use the item veto or trim quarterly allocations to the various state agencies, and two, by cutting proposed appropriations and hamstringing vital areas such as mental health and the highway department.

Both the Senate and House appropriations chairmen, Sen. J. F. (Pat) Patterson, D-Cathlamet, and Rep. Bernard (Doc) Simcoe, D-Fulton, expect little factional controversy stemming from reapportionment bitterness.

Simcoe pointed out that his committee, which will begin hearings Feb. 14, as will its Senate counterpart, always expects proposed budget increases from legislators who want to please home interests or serve political obligations. "I'm fearful, for example, of a larger proposed increase for public schools," he said, but this is to be expected. The Governor already has asked for a $10 million raise in the Public School Foundation Program.

Sen. Patterson added that comments from the legislative fiscal committee, which met two weeks ago, did not indicate any battle lines were shaping over the budget from bitterness over reapportionment. Both he and Simcoe, with other House and Senate members, attended the committee meeting.

Rep. William D. Hibler, D-Brunswick, who proposed a weighty $25 million increase in public school funds last year, and who campaigned against Amendment No. 3, dispelled any rumor that he would head a budget fight, indicating he holds no ill feelings toward the Governor over reapportionment and certainly would not carry such feelings into the budget hearings.

"The budget proposals must be considered on their merits," he said, not on political differences. This would apply to the public schools, too, he added.

Among House Republicans who opposed the Governor's reapportionment proposal was Rep. Martin Degenhardt, Perryville. He echoed Hibler's attitude toward the budget saying he does not foresee any bitterness carrying over from reapportionment among members of his party, but he is skeptical of the way Hearnes appears to be trying to pass his budget in the press.

Degenhardt feels it is irregular to release the budget proposals ahead of the appropriations session.

Should a House deadlock develop, however, there still are three steps of approval which could iron out any difficulty, according to Will C. Davis, the Governor's press secretary.

First, the budget must be heard

AMENDMENT CARRIES ONLY 28 COUNTIES Indicating the weight of the urban vote, only 28 Missouri counties carried majority votes Jan. 14 for Amendment No. 3, according to Assistant Secretary of State, Tighman Cloud.

Despite these odds, the constitutional amendment to assign state reapportionment to a bi-partisan commission carried by 33,916 to 23,599, according to final totals from the Secretary's office.

Foreign Aid Plan May Boomerang

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's proposal that Congress deal with future foreign aid authorization programs in two bills instead of one might boomerang against the administration.

Actually, if Congress accepted the proposal, there would be four separate bills, two authorization measures blueprinting the scope of the program and two appropriation bills putting up the money.

That would give the program's opponents four shots at the legislation instead of the two they have had in past years when a single authorization measure and a single appropriation bill took care of the program.

In recent years, the economic cost of the aid program has been higher than the military cost, but the latter has carried the former because Congress couldn't kill one undertaking without killing both.

The economic phase never has been too popular, its foes constantly branding it "the give-away program." They frequently have managed to cut economic aid while supporting military assistance which is more closely identified with national defense.

Congressional supporters of the aid program, particularly in the House, have resisted past efforts to divorce the economic aid part of the financing from the military. They have feared, and still fear, that economic assistance, if handled separately, would take a legislative beating.

In a recent interview, Rep. Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said separation of the program would make the economic section vulnerable to congressional budget-cutters. Morgan has been one of the staunchest supporters of the overall program. Past administration overtures aimed at separating the programs have been rebuffed by the House Appropriations Committee, whose chairman, Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., privately doesn't think too much of the President's proposal.

The suspicion that the separate package approach could backfire on the President is based on the obvious satisfaction which some foes of the entire program derived from the President's suggestion.

Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La.,

who heads a House Appropriations subcommittee which handles all foreign aid funds, didn't see any advantage either way to the President's suggestion that the entire program be authorized for a five-year period instead of being processed annually.

But Passman emphasized that he was against actual appropriations for more than one year at a time. He claimed the over-all aid program is "fragmentized" through 15 bills now and actually costs closer to $8 billion than the $3.3 billion appropriated last year.

A leading proponent of a long-term authorization period is Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Fulbright held out last year for an authorization of two years or longer, but the House, under Morgan's prodding, was adamant and succeeded in holding the program to one year at a time.

Good Words About Medic

By AL CHANG
CU CHI, South Viet Nam (AP)—They're talking about the medic in the 27th Infantry, 25th Division, and what they're saying is all good.

The medic is a private first class and he stopped being ordinary last weekend when the outfit was hit by the Viet Cong during a search of tunnel complexes around Cu Chi, 20 miles northwest of Saigon.

The Wolfhounds, trained in Hawaii, took some casualties and inflicted some, especially when a company came under fire after nightfall.

Out of holes and trenches the Viet Cong poured small arms fire from all directions and that's when the nameless medic showed up. He was hit three times while he was tending the wounded and finally he lost his temper.

He jumped up and ran across to where a sniper had been pumping away for some time. The medic whipped out his pistol and emptied his clip. Exit one sniper. Then he went back to his job.

Capt. Donald G. Winnham, Seattle, Wash., the battalion surgeon, said: "I don't know who that medic was but I'm going to find out. It was one of our real heroes of the day—I'm putting him in for a high decoration."

What the Communist Enemy is Saying

We are today beginning the publication of Commander Karl Baarslag's pamphlet "What the Communists Are Saying About You."

Contrary to widespread misconception about Communists and how they operate, Communist propaganda does not necessarily involve the dissemination of Communist dogma and beliefs to the non-Communist world. The chief problem of Communists, even in this country, is not that of "selling Communism" to a wary or hostile world. The main strategic problem of the Communists on their long and difficult march to world power is first to keep non-Communists from ever forming any really effective united front against them. Dividing their enemies and intended victims and keeping them fighting each other is always the No. 1 objective of all Communists whether in a small local organization or on a nation-wide basis.

The second most important strategic consideration of the Communists is to decide precisely who is their most dangerous enemy and to exert every effort at his isolation from the rest of the non-Communists. With Russia's resumption of the Cold War in 1945 against the rest of the non-Communist world, the Soviets very quickly made it plain as day that Uncle Sam was the Satan of Communist demonology. While there might be minor demons and lesser devils, they were little more than "jackies" and "pup-pets" of the United States. America was the center of blackest "imperialist" reaction and hence the source of all the world's evils, ills, and troubles. Communist propaganda by radio, printed word, and film constantly harps on this single theme -- there will be no peace, freedom, or stability in the world until "American imperialism" is totally destroyed.

All Communist propaganda is therefore aimed at isolating the United States behind a high wall of universal suspicion and hatred. In reviewing the following summary-digest of worldwide Communist propaganda it must always be borne in mind that it was not prepared nor directed at informed and sophisticated Americans. Communist broadcasts and printed material, which may sound childish and self-defeating to most Americans, will receive an entirely different reception by semi-literate African Negro nationalists, the Israel-hating Arab world, or subjectively impoverished Hindus and Latin-Americans. The fat, little rich boy of the neighborhood who has everything is seldom loved or even liked by his less fortunate neighbors. Don't laugh at Communist propaganda because it sounds foolish or hopelessly sectarian to you. Communists are not fools given to wasting time or money. They thoroughly know their audiences and their propaganda is always tailored to fit the weaknesses, gullibility, and credulousness of their particular targets. This is what they are telling the rest of the world about you.

COMMUNIST BROADCASTS-- MOSCOW, PEKING, HANOI Soviet broadcasts are generally more restrained in their attacks on the United States than Peking and other Communist states, at least in language. Forgive us... as we forgive.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: "Chicago Bachelor" got our blood pressure up with his list of twelve grips against females. (He called it the "Dirty Dozen.") Since you offered the girls equal time we hope you will print the following list put together by six Chicago secretaries. We can't stand men who:

1. Ask for a phone number and never use it.
2. Keep pressing a girl to have just one more drink after she has said she's had enough.
3. Wear plastic rain covers over their hats.
4. Leave an embarrassingly small tip for the waiter or waitress.
5. Wear white socks with business suits.
6. Let you know (in the strictest of confidence, of course) that they made the grade with Gertie.
7. Douse cigarettes in coffee cups or grind out cigars in left-over food.
8. Turn on the car radio and sing over Frank Sinatra.
9. Show up with the grandfather of all colds and an urge to get romantic.
10. Try to disguise baldness by combing their few remaining hairs in reverse.
11. Make very small talk at cocktail parties while their eyes

Expect Price Rises

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices may rise faster in the weeks and months just ahead. And you can blame everything from the weather to the booming economy itself.

People are expected to have still more money to spend. But the amount of available goods to spend it on may increase at a slower rate for awhile. And when the gain in demand tops the advance in supply, it usually means price rises.

The weather isn't helping just now. At the grocery store, especially in the East, prices of fruits and vegetables may rise sharply as the result of unusually bad weather in Florida and other centers that furnish winter produce. The supply of these foods already has been cut. And it's a long time until spring growing weather reaches other regions.

The weather also has been cutting back some factory output here and there in the nation. Reduced production, and especially the snarled transportation, adds to upward pressure on prices of some factory goods and raw materials.

But for the long run, the economy itself gets most of the blame. It seems that it's fast becoming taut. This means that output of many items is nearing the upward limit of present productive capacity. Skilled manpower also is short in some industries and some regions.

All this puts pressure on prices. Until recently, production could be increased as consumer and business spending demanded because of idle facilities and manpower. But at the moment production can't expand as fast as spending is growing, because there's little surplus capacity and fewer skilled workers available.

With more dollars than goods, prices are likely to rise.

While the nation's supply of money has been growing at a fast clip, demand for credit has been growing even faster. Bank loans to business have risen sharply, and the demand still is

Quantity Recipe For Beef Squares Will Serve Club

Savory beef squares swirled with a broiled mashed potato topping may be enjoyed by several families instead of just one.

This large quantity recipe enjoyed by school children may be just the tasty main dish for a church group or women's club luncheon. Exact proportions, pan sizes and baking times have been carefully worked out to assure success, says Reba Staggs, meat authority.

Beef Squares—Potato Topping

12 pounds ground beef
2 quarts catchup or chili sauce
2 quarts whole wheat bread crumbs (soft)
1/2 cup onion, chopped
8 eggs, slightly beaten
1/4 cup salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 gallon hot, seasoned, mashed potatoes

Combine ground beef, catchup or chili sauce, bread crumbs, onion, eggs, salt and pepper and mix well. Pack meat mixture into three 17 1/2"x12"x2 1/2" baking pans, making a layer of meat about 1 inch thick. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Spread layer of mashed potatoes on meat loaves, using 1/2 gallon of potatoes for each.

World Focus on Hawaii

The world's attention focused this weekend on Hawaii where President Johnson and officials from Washington, Saigon and Pearl Harbor began an intensive review of the Vietnamese war.

Johnson pledged a firm U.S. stand in South Viet Nam. He attacked "special pleading" by counsel retreat in Viet Nam" and called them "a group that has always been blind to experience and deaf to hope."

"We will leave here determined not only to achieve victory over aggression," he said, "but to win victory over hunger, disease and despair."

Antiwar pickets were prominent among the crowd of 6,000 that greeted Johnson on his arrival Saturday after a 5,000-mile nonstop flight from Washington.

Other weekend Viet Nam developments:

In Berlin, a free-swinging melee between police and demonstrators ended an antiwar protest march by 1,500 students and workers. The demonstration occurred at Amerika Haus, the U.S. cultural center in West Berlin.

U.N. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg opposed a coalition government for South Viet Nam that would include the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

A U.S. military spokesman in Saigon said two U.S. servicemen and five Vietnamese had been killed Saturday night when a Claymore mine exploded in a bar in Vinh Long City, about 60 miles southwest of Saigon.

Moscowites get a look Saturday at the first pictures they had seen of the moon's surface, taken by Luna 9. The Russians saw the pictures a day after the rest of the world. Britain's Jodrell Bank telescope had intercepted Luna's pictures and made them public. Soviet officials also disclosed that Luna 9 weighed almost two tons.

Government crises cropped up in Italy and Belgium.

In Rome, Aldo Moro quit as premier-designate of Italy after trying for more than a week to form a new government. President Giuseppe Saragat accepted the resignation and set up consultations to pick a new premier.

In Brussels, King Baudouin declined to accept the resignation of Premier Pierre Harmel's coalition government. Belgium's doctors immediately announced they would strike but then postponed the strike indefinitely. The strike had been called to enforce demands for higher fees under the state-run medical insurance program.

Police listed as suicide the death of James A. Pike Jr., 22, son of the Protestant Episcopal Bishop of California. They said he had shot himself with a high-powered hunting rifle. His body was found in his $54-a-day hotel room in New York.

An earthquake struck in north-central Greece, killing and leaving hundreds, perhaps thousands, homeless.

Argue Over Economy

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — There are hawks and doves in the debate over the economy just as there are in the congressional wrangle over the Viet Nam war. One dispute is about as noisy as the other these days.

The economic hawks want the nation's industrial growth pushed ahead as fast as possible. Among other things, a rapid expansion would furnish added tax revenues to pay for the Viet Nam war and for the civilian programs called the Great Society. The hawks warn that that any cramping of this growth might lead to a recession.

The doves call for caution. They feel the fast pace of the last five years has pushed the nation's production resources close to the limit of most favorable use. They want to reconcile the demands for still greater prosperity with the supply of manpower and with industrial capacity. They contend that otherwise the nation would be courting an inflationary boom, followed by a bust.

The conflicting positions of the hawks and the doves have been pointed up in the views of administration and monetary witnesses before the House-Senate Joint Economic Committee. The conflict is behind all their talk about higher prices, higher taxes, higher interest rates. And to that you can add the administration's urging of greater compliance with its guidelines on prices and wages.

The conflict is out in the open just now because the economy has reached a stage where both sides admit the uncertainties of world affairs and domestic trends might upset today's prosperity.

The hawks and doves differ in this: the hawks say it's what the doves are talking about — restraints — that could topple prosperity; the doves say it's the hawks' overexuberance that is the danger.

There is a middle course. And the administration lays claim to fostering that. Congress is being told that the administration wants mild restraints now, but quick action later if more curbs on inflation are needed. The administration wants the economic growth rate to continue at about the same speed. But it wants both labor and management to show self-restraint by not demanding too big pay raises or too high prices.

The hawks believe that human nature being what it is, the growth rate will be pushed higher to satisfy demands for greater and more widely shared prosperity. They fear that even mild restraints — moderately higher taxes, rising interest charges, tightening of available credit — may turn the economic cycle around and start it downward.

The doves believe that the time for real restraints, rather than token ones, already is here. They see speculation increasing, both in stock trading and in business expansion plans. They say wage demands are growing, productivity gains are slowing down, inflationary price hikes are in the making if not already here.

It could be that the economy is too big and its momentum too strong for either the hawks or the doves to be able to influence its course as much as they think they can. But both will go on trying to get the chance.

Hearnes Says Need Is Growing

RICH HILL, Mo. AP — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes told a community banquet Friday night that revenue needs at state and local levels are growing at a pace far exceeding the growth rate of state and local revenues.

The Missouri governor was principal speaker at a gathering of some 500 residents from Bates County, Missouri, from surrounding communities in Missouri and Kansas.

Hearnes advised a cautious look at federally-aided programs, saying all such programs sooner or later require expenditure of state funds.

He pointed out that in some programs the federal government decreases its percentage of payment until eventually the state is left with the entire bill. "You and I are not so politically naive," he said, "that we doubt the old understanding that a tax once levied is usually never withdrawn."

"We are also not so naive that we do not realize that a state government's program will continue because a group of our citizens have become involved, and once involved, they will expect their benefits or participation to continue — with or without federal funds."

Questioned by a Kansas newsman about the speech, Hearnes cited the manpower training program as one example he had in mind.

Hearnes said "What we need to know about a program when it is introduced is how much aid the government will provide this year, next year and so on down the line. This way we can plan for eventual loss of federal aid in a program."

Here and There Fishing Boat Snags Man Made Shell

EARLE, N.J. (AP) — An ocean-going fishing boat looking for shellfish recently came up with a manmade shell instead — a 1,200-pound artillery shell.

A spokesman at the Earle Naval Ammunition Dump said the "pre-World War II American" artillery piece could have destroyed the fishing boat and everyone aboard if it had detonated.

The shell was picked up about 13 miles off shore in 75 feet of water by the Viking Queen, which was dragging for scallops.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Promoters of "bloodless bullfights" here say they are considering such attractions in other major U.S. cities.

More than 100,000 bullfight aficionados witnessed the bullfights last weekend. Super Enterprises, Inc., the promoters of the Portuguese-style bullfights, said fans paid $409,185 for tickets during the three days of performances.

In Portuguese-style bullfighting — the animals are not destroyed.

OSWEGO, N.Y. (AP) — Oswego students are back in class again after a week with little more to do than play in the snow. And there was plenty of snow to play with.

Public schools and the State University College here opened Monday after most streets of this Lake Ontario shoreline city were cleared of more than eight feet of snow that fell last week.

Rain Eases African Drought

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa AP — Heavy rain has temporarily eased the drought situation in many parts of southern Africa, but agricultural experts say badly hit farmlands will take years to recover fully.

The rain saved many ranchers from moving thousands of cattle from their own dried-out properties to land where grazing was available. It also gave late crops a chance to mature.

The rains fell over southern areas of Rhodesia, isolated areas of Bechuanaland, Basutoland and many parts of South Africa.

The downpours were often too much for the sun-hardened soil. Millions of gallons ran off into streams.

The drought, which some areas of southern Africa have been suffering for up to six years, had laid waste thousands of square miles of countryside and turned good ranching land into dustbowl. Grass roots have disappeared, leaving the soil bare.

A member of Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd's Economic Advisory Council, Dr. Leon B. Knoll, said South Africa will this year have to import corn worth up to $63 million because of the drought and also the growing population. Corn is the staple diet of the African.

Three years ago South Africa exported $121 million worth of corn.

South Africa provided all its own wheat requirements last year but will this year have to import wheat worth $35 million, he said.

Republicans Point To Viet Nam Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are charting an election year course that aligns them generally with President Johnson's policy in the Vietnamese war — and spotlights Democratic criticism of the administration stand.

GOP orators seldom mount a platform these days without pointing to the Capitol Hill Democrats who challenge Johnson's stand.

"Fool talk," Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky called it.

"The flag is committed," he said, "to support the flag."

Republican strategists in Capitol Hill have said they are counting on Democratic divisions about Viet Nam to help the GOP cause in the congressional campaign ahead.

If Washington-based strategists have their way, Republican contenders next fall will challenge their Democratic opponents to declare themselves supporters — or critics — of Johnson's stand in Southeast Asia.

This political strategy has been accompanied by an easing of Republican calls for U.S. measures that would heighten the war.

Republican leaders seldom talk now about the two-month-old call of party chiefs for a blockade of North Viet Nam and for maximum use of air and sea power against military targets there.

In general, this GOP course seems to take maximum advantage of the public sentiment reported to the party's national committee by a professional poll-taker.

Thomas W. Benham of Opinion Research Corp. found Viet Nam the issue uppermost in the American mind — but also found that 56 per cent of the people approve what Johnson has ordered there and only 26 per cent disapprove.

While he reported Johnson's popularity rating is high, Benham recalled the plunge in Harry S. Truman's standing that accompanied the worsening Korean war.

A turn for the worse in Viet Nam could do the same thing to Johnson's popularity, Benham said.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York has said it would be suicidal for Republicans to try to make the war into a partisan issue.

"If the Republican party is smart," he said, "and it gives every indication of being so on this subject, it will stick strictly to the bipartisan position of support of the President when he deserves it and proper criticism when he doesn't deserve it."

Morton has said flatly that the Republican campaign will be waged on domestic issues, not on the question of Viet Nam.

This over-all plan leaves Republicans room to tackle Johnson on topics related to Viet Nam. For example, Benham reported 51 per cent of the people believe the administration is withholding too much information.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford and other congressional Republicans have assailed Johnson on that score. "There has been too much secrecy," Ford said. "We ought to have the facts to justify the sending of more troops to Viet Nam."

But on the war itself, Republicans seem happy to let Democrats do the criticizing.

Not it is a Democrat, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, who contends the American voter will register his opposition to the war in Viet Nam the next time he gets a chance to cast a ballot.

no more with them than they can carry. Often this is about forty-four pounds, which seems to be a limit set by some troops.

In principles, when refugees arrive at a refugee center they are registered and given ration cards, duplicates of which are held at district or province headquarters. These cards entitle them, again in principle, to seven plasters (about five cents) per day per person and/or food rations. In addition they may or may not receive mosquito nets, blankets or whatever other supplies are available. They are entitled to 3500 plasters (about twenty-five dollars) to build shelter, but often are given that, supports and perhaps corrugated metal roofing instead. Sometimes they are sheltered in or beside public buildings. After they are "settled" in refugee housing areas, they continue to receive a food ration for a limited period of time.

All the above is the responsibility of the Vietnamese Government, with assistance from the AID Mission. Since every province chief is master of his domain, whether or not this assistance is rendered depends almost entirely on him. In some provinces aid gets to the refugees fairly quickly and regularly; in others the refugees must wait.

When the refugees are sheltered, either temporarily or semi-permanently, voluntary agencies like CARE move in to help. CARE is especially interested in locating skilled refugees in need of tools or people who can work in handicraft or cottage industry centers. It is important that these displaced persons be as self-sufficient as possible and that they find some activities that will keep them relatively busy. For the children, CARE physical education kits are good, but for adults more productive activity is needed. To the latter we provide blacksmith, masonry, carpentry and needle trade kits.

Besides trying to get restless refugees active, CARE helps them with basic needs such as food and cloth, medicines such as soap, aspirin, vitamins and school kits. Based on a survey made by CARE and supported by information from other private and government agencies, we found that after food and shelter, clothing is the relief material most needed by war victims. So we put together a locally purchased textile package composed of thirteen yards of black rayon, needles, thread, scissors, buttons and laundry soap. Vietnamese peasants virtually always wear black trousers and shirts or blouses. This package is designed for one family and has become one of the most useful items of refugee relief in the country.

Catholic Relief Services gives used clothing to refugees, and CARE has a special family sewing kit which we give with CRS clothing. We also join Catholic Relief Service in supporting a refugee restaurant by adding rice to their bulgur wheat. The restaurant is run by a priest who spent several years in the United States. He is also supported by contributions from American military personnel in his area and contacts in the U.S.

Minh-Quy Hospital, named after two priests killed by the Vietcong, is run by Dr. Patricia Smith, a dedicated veteran of six years' experience working with hill-dwelling mountagnards. At her free hospital Dr. Smith delivers babies, performs operations, cures measles, malaria, dysentery and other diseases found in the mountain of Kontum, and working toward an acceptance of Western medicine by proving that it works better than the kind practiced by tribal witch doctors. And she is accomplishing her objective.

Because of her reputation among the mountagnards, refugees come to her rather than to the government-sponsored refugee centers in Kontum. Recently several U.S. helicopters landed with refugees and looking for the provincial hospital accidentally landed at Minh-Quy. When the refugees realized they were at the hospital of the famous white woman doctor,

Bracey Takes Fertilizer Job

PORTAGEVILLE -- Hilton L. Bracey for 14 years executive vice president of Missouri Cotton Producers association has accepted a job effective March 1 with the Missouri Farmers Association.

He will continue to live in Portageville and operate from a field office of the MFA, which will be established here. He will develop a fertilizer cooperative in Southeast Missouri, which will sell, distribute, manufacture and otherwise make available plant foods and farm chemicals to farmers in the area.

Bracey is a member of the national advisory on cotton to the secretary of agriculture, and serves on an advisory committee to the Missouri College of Agriculture at the University of Missouri in Columbia. He is a former chairman of the Missouri agricultural stabilization and conservation committee of the United States department of agriculture, and a former president of the Mid-South Cotton Producers committee, the forerunner of American Cotton Producers association.

He operates a cotton and grain farm in Pemiscot county. During World War II he served with the infantry in Europe. Bracey is married and has four children.

Sandwich Combo
Bacon and tomato are old favorites for a sandwich, but the addition of liver sausage to this duo may be new to you. This sausage is very nutritious, goes well with the old favorites and when spread first on the buttered bread, it helps tomatoes and bacon stay together better.

they refused to get back in the helicopters and go to the provincial refugee center. So now Minh-Quy is a refugee center as well as a hospital, but without facilities or support for the former function. CARE sends packaged foods, rice and salt, soap, vitamins. That ever else we can find to help Dr. Smith and her small staff care for her refugees, who live on the hospital grounds. When I was last there ninety-nine in-patients were sleeping on Minh-Quy's forty beds.

Another refugee center that depends on voluntary help from CARE and other organizations is a war widows' home and orphanage. Located in a former government building in Sakon, this institution welcomes widows and children made homeless by the war, as well as some who were brought to Saigon hospitals for treatment and who are not well enough to return to their villages. Radio appeals by the Vietnamese Women's Association for their home brought voluntary contributions from Vietnamese all over the country, something almost unheard of there.

Naturally, CARE helps refugees in established government centers throughout the country, whether they be schools temporarily used for shelter, thatch huts built by the refugees themselves, or concrete longhouses built by the Government for the refugees. Where there are needs we can fill, CARE makes every attempt to do so. CARE rice, salt, fish sauce, donated food, soap, school supplies, physical education kits, carpentry, masonry and blacksmith tool sets, resettler kits, first aid kits, textile, needle trade and family sewing packages, aspirins and vitamins have been delivered to refugees all over Vietnam.

CARE is only one of the fifteen or twenty relief agencies and more than thirty nations from every continent which are providing assistance to the Vietnamese people today. I suppose every person in Vietnam who is working with and for the Vietnamese in order that they may be free from want and suffering wishes, consciously or subconsciously, that Jonathan Swift was wrong when he wrote "Nothing is so hard for those who abound in riches as to conceive how others can be in want."

'Dolly' Has No Point

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — There was not much of a point to be made in Monday night's NBC special, "Hello Dolly, Round the World," but it didn't matter. It was an entertaining theatrical hodge-podge, beautifully filmed, and pulled together by the vitality and charm of Mary Martin, narrator and central figure.

There were delightful bits and pieces of "Hello, Dolly," the smash Broadway musical that has been an international hit.

There were glimpses of the backstage life of the touring company. We saw hectic preparations for opening night in Tokyo. And there was Miss Martin, singing for a curtain speech "Hello Tokyo" in Japanese.

Some stunning shots of Tokyo by night and of the lovely Japanese countryside followed, plus a charming report of Miss Martin's visit to an orphanage. The scene shifted abruptly to Viet Nam, next stop for the 71-member troupe. For a few minutes the program abandoned its rich color for sober black-and-white. The final portion of the program reminded one of Bob Hope's entertainment tour, with crowds of young soldiers, many of them in blue hospital pajamas, listening intently to the performance from makeshift stages — in the open or in a converted hangar.

In addition to everything else, it was a lovely long play. The show which, with various companies of players, is still filling theaters all over the place. Holy Nielsen, as Robin the boy wonder might say, "Batman," in its first appearance on the national ratings list, crashed — per — into the television's elite circle, the top 10.

The two-week ABC series wound up in the eighth and ninth spots in the report released Monday by the A. C. Nielsen Co. in its estimates of audience sizes for the two weeks ending Jan. 23.

Most popular show of the period was Bob Hope's Christmas show on NBC, followed by the same network's "Bonanza." Third was CBS' "Andy Griffith Show." Others in the top 10 were ABC's "Bewitched," CBS' "The Lucy Show," "Gomer Pyle," "Red Skelton Show" and "Beverly Hillsbillies."

Recommended tonight: "CBS Reports," 9-10, "Sixteen in Webster Groves," a study of teenagers and their parents in a Midwestern community.

Fined $105

POPULAR BLUFF -- Harold E. Snider, 36-year-old resident of Route 1, Bernie, was fined a total of $105 today after he pleaded guilty to two charges before Judge Francis M. Kinder in magistrate court.

Snider, who was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Bob Smith, pleaded guilty to a charge of having no driver's license and was fined $5, and to a charge of driving while intoxicated and was fined $100.

In general, this GOP course seems to take maximum advantage of the public sentiment reported to the party's national committee by a professional poll-taker.

Thomas W. Benham of Opinion Research Corp. found Viet Nam the issue uppermost in the American mind — but also found that 56 per cent of the people approve what Johnson has ordered there and only 26 per cent disapprove. While he reported Johnson's popularity rating is high, Benham recalled the plunge in Harry S. Truman's standing that accompanied the worsening Korean war.

A turn for the worse in Viet Nam could do the same thing to Johnson's popularity, Benham said.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York has said it would be suicidal for Republicans to try to make the war into a partisan issue.

"If the Republican party is smart," he said, "and it gives every indication of being so on this subject, it will stick strictly to the bipartisan position of support of the President when he deserves it and proper criticism when he doesn't deserve it."

Morton has said flatly that the Republican campaign will be waged on domestic issues, not on the question of Viet Nam.

This overall plan leaves Republicans room to tackle Johnson on topics related to Viet Nam. For example, Benham reported 51 per cent of the people believe the administration is withholding too much information.

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford and other congressional Republicans have assailed Johnson on that score. "There has been too much secrecy," Ford said. "We ought to have the facts to justify the sending of more troops to Viet Nam."

But on the war itself, Republicans seem happy to let Democrats do the criticizing.

Nor is it a Democrat, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, who contains the American voter will register his opposition to the war in Viet Nam the next time he gets a chance to cast a ballot.

Bracey Takes Fertilizer Job

PORTAGEVILLE — Hilton L. Bracey for 14 years executive vice president of Missouri Cotton Producers association has accepted a job effective March 1 with the Missouri Farmers Association.

He will continue to live in Portageville and operate from a field office of the MFA, which will be established here. He will develop a fertilizer co-operative in Southeast Missouri, which will sell, distribute, manufacture and otherwise make available plant foods and farm chemicals to farmers in the area.

Bracey is a member of the national advisory on cotton to the secretary of agriculture, and serves on an advisory committee to the Missouri College of Agriculture at the University of Missouri in Columbia. He is a former chairman of the Missouri agricultural stabilization and conservation committee of the United States department of agriculture, and a former president of the Mid-South Cotton Producers committee, the forerunner of American Cotton Producers association.

He operates a cotton and grain farm in Pemiscott county. During World War II he served with the infantry in Europe. Bracey is married and has four children.

When the refugees are sheltered, either temporarily or semi-permanently, voluntary agencies like CARE move in to help. CARE is especially interested in locating skilled refugees in need of tools or people who can work in handicraft or cottage industry centers. It is important that these displaced persons be as self-sufficient as possible and that they find some activities that will keep them relatively busy.

For the children, CARE physical education kits are good, but for adults more productive activity is needed. To the latter we provide blacksmith, masonry, carpentry and needle trade kits. Besides trying to get restless refugees active, CARE helps them with basic needs such as food and cloth, medicines such as soap, aspirin, vitamins and school kits. Based on a survey made by CARE and supported by information from other private and government agencies, we found that after food and shelter, clothing is the relief material most needed by war victims. So we put together a locally purchased textile package composed of thirteen yards of black rayon, needles, thread, scissors, buttons and laundry soap. Vietnamese peasants virtually always wear black trousers and shirts or blouses. This package is designed for one family and has become one of the most useful items of refugee relief in the country.

Catholic Relief Services gives used clothing to refugees, and CARE has a special family sewing kit which we give with CRS clothing. We also join Catholic Relief Service in supporting a refugee restaurant by adding rice to their bulgur wheat. The restaurant is run by a priest who spent several years in the United States. He is also supported by contributions from American military personnel in his area and contacts in the U.S.

Minh-Quy Hospital, named after two priests killed by the Vietcong, is run by Dr. Patricia Smith, a dedicated veteran of six years' experience working with hill-dwelling mountaineers. At her free hospital Dr. Smith delivers babies, performs operations, cures measles, malaria, dysentery and other diseases found in the mountain of Kontum, and working toward an acceptance of Western medicine by proving that it works better than the kind practiced by tribal healers. And she is accomplishing her objectives.

Because of her reputation among the mountaineers, refugees come to her rather than to the government-sponsored refugee centers in Kontum. Recently several U.S. helicopters loaded with refugees and looking for the provincial hospital accidentally landed at Minh-Quy. When the refugees realized they were at the hospital of the famous white woman doctor, they refused to get back in the helicopters and go to the provincial refugee center. So now Minh-Quy is a refugee center as well as a hospital, but without facilities or support for the former function. CARE sends packaged foods, rice, soap, vitamins. That's all we can find to help Dr. Smith and her small staff care for her refugees, who live on the hospital grounds. When I was last there ninety-nine in-patients were sleeping in Minh-Quy's forty beds.

Another refugee center that depends on voluntary help from CARE and other organizations is a war widows' home and orphanage. Located in a former government building in Saigon, this institution welcomes widows and children made homeless by the war, as well as some who were brought to Saigon hospitals for treatment and who are not well enough to return to their villages. Radio appeals by the Vietnamese Women's Association for their home brought voluntary contributions from Vietnamese all over the country, something almost unheard of there.

Naturally, CARE helps refugees in established government centers throughout the country, whether they be schools temporarily used for shelter, thatched huts built by the refugees themselves, or concrete longhouses built by the Government for the refugees. Where there are needs we can fill, CARE makes every attempt to do so. CARE rice, salt, fish sauce, donated food, soap, school supplies, physical education kits, carpentry, masonry and blacksmith tool sets, resettler kits, first aid kits, textile, needle trade and family sewing packages, aspirins and vitamins have been delivered to refugees all over Vietnam.

CARE is only one of the fifteen or twenty relief agencies and more than thirty nations from every continent which are providing assistance to the Vietnamese people today. I suppose every person in Vietnam who is working with and for the Vietnamese in order that they may be free from want and suffering wishes, consciously or subconsciously, that Jonathan Swift was wrong when he wrote "Nothing is so hard for those who abound in riches as to conceive how others can be in want."

Masses Flee Viet Nam Battle Zones

(This is the third in a series of three articles by F. Jeffery Farrell, Wichita, Kansas, who has spent the last 2 1/2 years administering CARE's program in Vietnam.)

by F. Jeffery Farrell
As the Vietnam war grows larger, the refugee problem becomes more difficult to cope with. The working definition of "refugee" becomes broader. Most of the voluntary agencies try not to exclude certain victims of the war merely because in the eyes of the government officials they are not "legal" refugees. Help is available to all the needy people, whether they are living in refugee camps or with other families or in their own homes. For the war hurts them no matter where they are living.

The intensification of the war worsens the refugee problem in several ways. Air strikes, when in an area where the Vietcong does not have complete control, are preceded by warnings to the people. These warnings are in the form of leaflets dropped by planes and/or helicopter loud-speaker announcements. Sometimes not all of the people heed these instructions to leave the target area, either from stubbornness or because the Vietcong does not permit them to flee. The Vietcong have been known to tie up villagers and leave them to the mercy of impersonal bombings, while they leave or hide in underground tunnels.

As the Vietcong attempts to gain more territory, individuals, families and even whole villages become voluntary refugees rather than risk Vietcong control. Often the groups are led by persons who are more aware of the danger than the average Vietnamese. Many Vietcong would be. Sometimes the Vietcong send large numbers of peasants (minus the young men, whom they impress to help them) to areas of government control to increase the already great strain on government relief facilities. Among these, too, are infiltrators who try to stir up anti-government trouble.

The refugees come out on foot, in Vietnamese Army trucks, or, if they are lucky, in helicopters or troop planes. Their usual destinations are the urban areas, which hold out promises of security and limited food rations. Many move in with friends or relatives and are not so dependent on government resources. They all bring

'Dolly' Has No Point

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There was not much of a point to be made in Monday night's NBC special, "Hello Dolly, Round the World," but it didn't matter. It was an entertaining theatrical hodge-podge, beautifully filmed, and pulled together by the vitality and charm of Mary Martin, narrator and central figure.

There were delightful bits and pieces of "Hello, Dolly," the smash Broadway musical that has been an international hit. There were glimpses of the backstage life of the touring company. We saw hectic preparations for opening night in Tokyo. And there was Miss Martin, singing for a curtain speech "Hello Tokyo" in Japanese.

Some stunning shots of Tokyo by night and of the lovely Japanese countryside followed, plus a charming report of Miss Martin's visit to an orphanage. The scene shifted abruptly to Viet Nam, next stop for the 71-member troupe. For a few minutes the program abandoned its rich color for sober black-and-white. The final portion of the program reminded one of Bob Hope's entertainment tour, with crowds of young soldiers, many of them in blue hospital pajamas, listening intently to the performance from makeshift stages — in the open or in a converted hangar.

In addition to everything else, it was a lovely love play. The show which, with various companies of players, is still filling theaters all over the place. Holy Nielsen, as Robin the boy wonder might say, "Batman," in its first appearance on the national television screen, into the television's ether circle, the top 10.

The two-week ABC series wound up in the eighth and ninth spots in the report released Monday by the A. C. Nielsen Co. in its estimates of audience sizes for the two weeks ending Jan. 23.

Most popular show of the period was Bob Hope's Christmas show on NBC, followed by the same network's "Bonanza." Third was CBS' "Andy Griffith Show." Others in the top 10 were ABC's "Bewitched," CBS' "The Lucy Show," "Gomer Pyle," "Red Skelton Show" and "Beverly Hills Cop."

First of New 10-Part Series on Modern Math Helps Parents Understand Their Children's Work

By Prof. W. F. Lloyd, University of Tampa

Do you know that every time that you add up a column of numbers you are utilizing the Associative Law of Addition? Do you know that whenever you multiply two numbers having more than one digit you are making use of the Distributive Law of Real Numbers? Do you really know what you are doing when you "borrow" in a subtraction problem? Your children do—or they will when they study Modern Mathematics.

Maybe if you had been taught the "why" of arithmetic as well as you were drilled in the "how," it would be a more inviting tool. What the schools are attempting to do with your children is to acquaint them with the fundamental reasoning behind the operations with numbers. This is Modern Math.

Modern Math is young. It is just now celebrating its tenth birthday. It grew out of a revolt against stagnation in the math curriculum in our public schools. It is now influencing colleges, and is spreading over the entire country. It may not be a perfect teaching method, but it's the best we have.

For over 200 years arithmetic was taught by memorization and drill. The children were required to memorize a seemingly endless number of rules and then spend hours in drill drudgery that was supposed to drive in the memorized routine. In the grade school they labored through arithmetic with unrealistically large numbers, and through dull, unimaginative, and artificial word problems.

Of course individual teachers and educators tried to change this dreary state of affairs, but the tremendous inertia of the system stifled their efforts.

The year 1955 marked the start of the first concerted effort to change things. The College Entrance Examination Board (CEE) appointed a commission to make suggestions for improvement. The University of Illinois' work in high school math, and the University of Maryland's work in junior high schools around Washington, D.C., gave further authority to this effort.

All three of these projects received financial and moral support from the Carnegie Foundation. The Russians with their Sputnik I in 1957 boosted these revitalization efforts. Shortly afterwards the School Mathematics Study Group (SMSG) financed by the National Science Foundation was formed. This group adopted many of the findings of the earlier groups and carried them further.

Children Like It

The high school curriculum was revised first. In Trigonometry, the emphasis on tedious calculations with logarithms was largely eliminated. (We have computers for that now.)

Solid geometry was replaced by an introduction to calculus or a math survey course. Algebra was no longer to be a "do it this way because it's right" course, but rather one stressing understanding and reason.

It was soon discovered that the revisions would be more successful if proper foundations were laid. The work was extended downward until it is now in the primary grades. Because they had no preconceived ideas nor habits to unlearn, the children took to this new math eagerly. Resistance came principally from parents who were not fully informed and thought their hard earned mathematical knowledge was being swept aside and rendered valueless.

This was and is not true. Your children will arrive at the same place as you have, or even a more advanced place. They are merely taking a different vehicle.

With modern math training, the good student will be a better mathematician, the average student will be improved, and the dumbbell will still be a dumbbell.

About the only ones to suffer are parents who have to face the fact that their children are learning something that had not been invented when they went to school. In every revolution the old suffer most.

Do not get the idea that there were no advances in mathematics during the long period of doldrums in the public school curriculum. Quite to the contrary, mathematics was advancing rapidly. The trouble was that this new knowledge was the almost exclusive property of top level mathematicians. SMSG and other experimental groups had access to this knowledge. They examined it critically and revised it for the lower grades.

It's Here To Stay

There followed a short period of chaos when some educators and a few authors grabbed at the work of these groups prematurely or without careful study. This led to some courses of study and some textbooks that were pretty extreme. Cooler heads soon prevailed and these early mistakes were rectified. Modern Math is here to stay.

Some principals and administrators seized on Modern Math early and eagerly transmitted their enthusiasm to their faculties so that the program was alive, vital and well taught. Others held out until the pressure of professional and public opinion became too great.

Some systems waited until junior high to introduce the new method. Others adopted it in all grades simultaneously, or in any combination that can be imagined. This lack of uniformity hurt the public image of the new subject.

Some students resented the break with tradition. Students were particularly bewildered when transferring from a traditional class to a modern class or vice versa.

Time is tending to heal these wounds. It is only when a child is brought up all the way with this new method that he receives maximum benefit.

You parents can not be blamed if you do not know nor understand Modern Math. Remember it had not been invented when you were in school. Either learn it or ignore it, but don't fight it.

It is hoped that this brief introduction has made you more sympathetic to the topic under discussion. Future installments will acquaint you with some of the details and some of the language used in our classrooms today. We may not be able to go into the subject deeply enough so that you will be able to do your child's homework, but you need no longer wear that questioning look on your face when the new words and terms pop up.

Saigon government. Thereafter, the way would be opened to trade and political connections with North Viet Nam.

One eminent Vietnamese says he feels that moderate Buddhists and moderate Roman Catholics can develop organizations which can act together to bring public pressure on Ky and Thieu. Such "moderates" exclude elements like the extreme Buddhists led by Thich Tri Quang and the Catholics and were close to Ngo Dinh Diem. Quang played an important role in the Buddhist uprising which preceded President Diem's downfall in November 1963.

Some substance seems to be given to the reports in the light of past events. The post-Diem regime under Duong Van Minh was overthrown in 1964. Among those helping in this enterprise were elements who suspected his regime of planning to open a door to the Communists. One of the leading figures in that upheaval, which ushered in the regime of Gen. Nguyen Khanh, was Gen. Tran Thien Khlem. Khlem wants war to the finish with Hanoi.

Khlem's assignment abroad, away from the political arena, could be viewed as a concession by the military leadership to pressures from those seeking some sort of diplomatic-political solution in Viet Nam. The seekers of such a solution present the situation in this manner:

--The renewed U. S. air attacks on North Viet Nam are "political bombings." If these are limited to roads, bridges and military targets away from Hanoi and Haiphong, the Soviet Union is likely to do nothing about it. This sort of bombing erases what only the Russians --not the Chinese--can replace. This would tend to increase Soviet authority in North Viet Nam, and Saigon's "doves" indicate they would far rather see that than contested Peking way.

--If the bombing should hit either Hanoi or Haiphong port, or if Haiphong should be blockaded, the Soviet Union might be forced closer to the Chinese side of the argument.

--The Viet Nam situation has an increasing abrasive effect on Moscow's relations with Peking. If this continues, the two will reach the point of open break.

--The germ of deviancy, as the Chinese view it, is spreading in the North Viet Nam party. There is weariness with the costly war and there is deep-rooted, traditional distrust of China. Such Communists are viewed by some Southern political elements as basically Nationalist, men who would listen to a proposal of a way out, if the offer sounded attractive enough.

This would mean eventually inviting Viet Cong representatives to join a coalition government in the South. ## Plan Outshines Even LBJ's Great Society

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson gingerly plumped on the doorstep of Congress a monumental share the wealth plan that outshines even his own "Great Society" vision — and quietly tiptoed away.

So vast is the 210-page proposal to reshape the American economy that Johnson reportedly shied like a Texas stallion from linking himself with it at a time he seeks $13 billion to press the war in Viet Nam.

"I think the White House was quite alarmed," said Joseph A. Beirne, a member of a little-noted presidential commission that dropped the blockbuster report in Johnson's lap.

Just one of some 75 major proposals in the report — a guaranteed minimum annual income for every American family—would cost up to $20 billion a year alone.

Beirne, president of the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America, is one of five members of the 14-member commission which the nation should put the same urgent priority on a massive social and economic revolution that it does on fighting Communists in Viet Nam.

The United States can afford both, he said.

Beirne, miffed at the way the White House suddenly issued the report without a word of endorsement, said he believed Johnson — or his advisers — feared it would give further ammunition to Republican efforts to cut back "Great Society" programs because of the war.

Although the White House didn't send a single copy of the report to key members of Congress — a usual courtesy — early reaction confirmed this fear.

"I think the Congress will take a close look before they expand any 'Great Society' programs," said Rep. William H. Ayres of Ohio, top Republican on the House Labor Committee which will consider the huge economic proposal.

"Frankly, I think we should be spending more time worrying about our boys in Viet Nam," said Ayres.

But Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., cautiously endorsed the guaranteed minimum income idea.

Not even Perkins, No. 2 Democrat on the Labor Committee, or Chairman Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., got a copy of the huge economic report.

Nor, in issuing the report of the National Commission on Technology, Automation and Economic Progress, was there any of the usual White House fanfare accompanying a major document — no picture posing of the President with the commission, no television cameras — and little explanation.

"They just handed us this massive report and then asked if we had any questions," blurted one bemused veteran White House reporter.

Beirne said he thought the White House was "alarmed" both by the vast scope of the report in charting a 10-year economic plan, and by the unanimous recommendations of the labor, big business, civil rights and university representatives on the blue-ribbon panel.

The commission's recommendations on how the nation can "invent the future" are too numerous to list in full, but a few are:

Two years of free college education for every youngster, a national council to "monitor" American economic and social goals, a federal computer system to match men and jobs in the nation's rapidly changing labor market, completely federalizing the present federal-state employment service, and massive federal aid to fight air and water pollution, improve transportation and housing.

"There is enough in this program for 10 years of work if the nation will tackle it," said Beirne, but "they're all tough political decisions."

'Modern Math' Made Clear To Parents by New Series

There's no great mystery to the "Modern Math" system of teaching arithmetic that youngsters now encounter in the classroom.

No mystery, that is, if it's properly explained. To make it clear to parents, we have engaged Prof. W. F. Lloyd of the University of Tampa, who has gained a reputation by explaining the system to teachers of the subject.

Prof. Lloyd has written a series that covers the essentials in easy-to-understand language and that starts in this newspaper Monday.

If you will follow it from day to day, and take the simple test that concludes it, you should be able to help your own youngsters with the subject—or at least know what they are talking about!

Also, you can obtain a booklet reprinting the series by sending 50 cents to "Modern Math" in care of this newspaper.

First of New 10-Part Series on Modern Math Helps Parents Understand Their Children's Work

By Prof. W. F. Lloyd, University of Tampa

Do you know that every time that you add up a column of numbers you are utilizing the Associative Law of Addition? Do you know that whenever you multiply two numbers having more than one digit you are making use of the Distributive Law of Real Numbers? Do you really know what you are doing when you "borrow" in a subtraction problem? Your children do — or they will when they study Modern Mathematics.

Maybe if you had been taught the "why" of arithmetic as well as you were drilled in the "how," it would be a more inviting tool. What the schools are attempting to do with your children is to acquaint them with the fundamental reasoning behind the operations with numbers. This is Modern Math.

Modern Math is young. It is just now celebrating its tenth birthday. It grew out of a revolt against stagnation in the math curriculum in our public schools. It is now influencing colleges, and is spreading over the entire country. It may not be a perfect teaching method, but it's the best we have.

For over 200 years arithmetic was taught by memorization and drill. The children were required to memorize a seemingly endless number of rules and then spend hours in drill drudgery that was supposed to drive in the memorized routine. In the grade school they labored through arithmetic with unrealistically large numbers, and through dull, unimaginative, and artificial word problems.

Of course individual teachers and educators tried to change this dreary state of affairs, but the tremendous inertia of the system stifled their efforts.

The year 1955 marked the start of the first concerted effort to change things. The College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB) appointed a commission to make suggestions for improvement. The University of Illinois' work in high school math, and the University of Maryland's work in junior high schools around Washington, D.C., gave further authority to this effort.

All three of these projects received financial and moral support from the Carnegie Foundation. The Russians with their Sputnik I in 1957 boosted these revitalization efforts. Shortly afterwards the School Mathematics Study Group (SMSG) financed by the National Science Foundation was formed. This group adopted many of the findings of the earlier groups and carried them further.

Children Like It

The high school curriculum was revised first. In Trigonometry, the emphasis on tedious calculations with logarithms was largely eliminated. (We have computers for that now.)

Solid geometry was replaced by an introduction to calculus or a math survey course. Algebra was no longer to be a "do it this way because it's right" course, but rather one stressing understanding and reason.

It was soon discovered that the revisions would be more successful if proper foundations were laid. The work was extended downward until it is now in the primary grades. Because they had no preconceived ideas nor habits to unlearn, the children took to this new math eagerly. Resistance came principally from parents who were not fully informed and thought their hard earned mathematical knowledge was being swept aside and rendered valueless.

This was and is not true. Your children will arrive at the same place as you have, or even a more advanced place. They are merely taking a different route.

With modern math training, the good student will be a better mathematician, the average student will be improved, and the dumbbell will still be a dumbbell.

About the only ones to suffer are parents who have not faced the fact that their children are learning something that had not been invented when they went to school. In every revolution the old suffer most.

Do not get the idea that there were no advances in mathematics during the long period of doldrums in the public school curriculum. Quite to the contrary, mathematics was advancing rapidly. The trouble was that this new knowledge was the almost exclusive property of top level mathematicians. SMSG and other experimental groups had access to this knowledge. They examined it critically and revised it for the lower grades.

It's Here To Stay

There followed a short period of chaos when some educators and a few authors grabbed at the work of these groups prematurely or without careful study. This led to some courses of study and some textbooks that were pretty extreme. Cooler heads soon prevailed and these early mistakes were rectified. Modern Math is here to stay.

Some principals and administrators seized on Modern Math early and eagerly transmitted their enthusiasm to their faculties so that the program was alive, vital and well taught. Others held out until the pressure of professional and public opinion became too great.

Some systems waited until junior high to introduce the new method. Others adopted it in all grades simultaneously, or in any combination that can be imagined. This lack of uniformity hurt the public image of the new subject.

Some students resented the break with tradition. Students were particularly bewildered when transferring from a traditional class to a modern class or vice versa.

Time is tending to heal these wounds. It is only when a child is brought up all the way with this new method that he receives maximum benefit.

You parents can not be blamed if you do not know nor understand Modern Math. Remember it had not been invented when you were in school. Either learn it or ignore it, but don't fight it.

It is hoped that this brief introduction has made you more sympathetic to the topic under discussion. Future installments will acquaint you with some of the details and some of the language used in our classrooms today. We may not be able to go into the subject deeply enough so that you will be able to do your child's homework, but you need no longer wear that questioning look on your face when the new words and terms pop up.

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 8, the 39th day of 1966. There are 326 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1904, the Japanese besieged Port Arthur, Manchuria, starting the Russo-Japanese war. The Russians were defeated by Jan. 1, 1905.

In 1902, the great Paterson, N.J., fire started at midnight, destroying property worth $8 million, including five churches, two banks, some of the largest stores and about 250 dwellings.

In 1910, the Boy Scouts of America was incorporated, receiving a federal charter from Congress later, in 1916.

In 1935, the Constitution of the Philippines Commonwealth was adopted.

In 1942, the Japanese landed reinforcements on the island of Singapore.

Mayor Declares War on Cabbies

SAIGON, South Viet Nam. AP — Saigon's mayor is on the warpath — against chiseling taxicab drivers.

Bombarded with complaints that the hackies were overcharging and favoring the free-spending Americans over Vietnamese, Mayor Van Van Cua decided to look for himself.

He and an aide rode by cab from downtown Saigon to Cholon, the Chinese quarter. The driver refused to turn on the meter and demanded an exorbitant price from each man. En route he picked up another passenger for a similar overcharge.

To confirm his check, the mayor took a cab back and this time encountered a driver with "a big wrench at hand which he probably would use against aggressive passengers who might oppose his demands."

The official Viet Nam Press, in recounting the mayor's inspection, said he took the drivers' names for punitive action.

Two Men Hold Up Station

KENNETT -- The East "Y" Shell Service station in Kennett was robbed by two men Sunday night, one of them armed with a .22 automatic pistol.

According to Danny Williams, employed by Lynn Smith as an attendant at the station, the two men entered the station about 8:05 p.m. as he was preparing to close.

They demanded that Williams break the lock on a filing cabinet where the cash proceeds were kept and took approximately $159 from a box there. Then they took the attendant's billfold which he said contained $8.

They tied the wrists and ankles of the attendant with fishing cord and tied his ankles to the filing cabinet before they left the station. Williams said they left in a light colored car which they had parked in front of the Kennett Monument shop, next door to the station.

The attendant was able to break the cord binding his wrists and then cut the cord on his ankles with a knife. He went across the street to the Kennett No. 2 fire station and notified police.

Deputy Raines reported Monday morning that the men were described as between 25 and 35 years of age. The one who carried the automatic pistol was about 5 feet, 10 inches tall and weighed 165 pounds. The second man was 5 feet, 7 inches tall and weighed 150 pounds. They both wore gray colored snap-billed caps.

Williams said that another attendant had left the station just a few minutes before he started to close. This other attendant reported that he noticed the parked car and thought it was a Chrysler product. He also noted that the head light on the driver's side was out and the front fender was damaged.

File Charge in Narcotics Death

NEW YORK AP -- Robert Friede, an heir to the Annenberg publishing empire, has been charged with homicide in the death of a young woman whose body was found in the trunk of his car.

Police discovered the body Monday after Friede was arrested on a narcotics charge.

The girl, Celeste Crenshaw, 19, died two weeks ago of "acute and chronic intravenous narcotism," according to a medical examiner. Police said Friede had given her the injection in his East Side apartment.

Friede, 25, also was charged with failing to report a death, illegal transportation of a body, and possession of narcotics.
